BEER BILL SPEEDED TOWARD VOTE

Today

Much Little News.
Hit the Man, Not the Pig.
Oil in Florida.
The Death Enforcer.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 21.

THERE IS a great deal of little news. In California, Gov. Rolph pardons 129 convicted of bootlegging. The people voted against prohibition. Vox populi, vox dei, "The voice of the people is the voice of God," and Gov. Rolph says that is more important than the voice of prohibition.

PROF. KRAUS, who teaches philosophy in City College of New York, has changed his mind about killing himself by fasting, because nobody does anything about attacks on Jews in Poland. He, philosophically, concludes that he couldn't improve conditions in Poland by dying of hunger. A living professor is better than a dead martyr.

ANOTHER RAILROAD in the hands of a receiver. This one is the Central of Georgia Railway Company, belonging one hundred per cent to the Illinois Central Railway. Apparently the ownership was not profitable, in these times.

A receivership is no disgrace now. To escape it is a distinction like being a survivor of the charge of the light brigade.

A STRANGE story from Duluth, Minn., about two men who agreed to steal a pig. One was to drive the pig out through a little trap door, the other standing with an ax was to hit the pig, when it appeared.

One man crawled in, but the pig was not there. He crawled out of the little door and his friend, waiting, hit him in the neck with the ax. It was a nervous blow and he will recover. Any clergyman can find a moral in that story.

MR. LARKIN CLEVELAND'S Herald, published in De Funiak Springs, Fla., carries on its front page the line, "Liked by many, cussed by some, and read by everybody," believes that oil will soon be found at De Funiak Springs.

An important member of the Standard Oil crowd believed that there is oil in Florida, that the deposits must run eastward from Mexico under the gulf, and below the surface of Florida.

After spending two or three hundred thousand dollars trying to find it, he decided that the oil was too far down. If oil is there, as it probably is, somebody will find it. But don't buy oil stocks hastily.

IN THE BRITISH House of Commons an indignant member discovers that tabasco sauce, used in the house restaurant, is made in Louisiana, U. S. A. Promptly the house agrees to throw out the "Yankee" concoction and substitute something British.

Meanwhile, some Americans continue to emphasize the superiority of British goods, doing all they can to finance British labor and commerce.

CRIME INCIDENT in Chicago. Four policemen, raided seven gangsters, presumably talking business, on the fifth floor of an office building.

They surrendered meekly, but police failed to recognize Frank Nitti, on whom reporters have bestowed the picturesque title "death enforcer of the boss."

Mr. Nitti put a piece of paper in his mouth, chewed violently and tried to swallow. Policeman Lang dashed at Nitti to save the secret. Nitti started firing. Lang was a better shot. Three bullets in Nitti's abdomen, one in the spine, will make it necessary to choose another "death enforcer."

AGAIN THIS year the Russian government will "ignore Christmas Day" and Christmas Day, surviving the ignoring process, will be celebrated by millions, in Russia as elsewhere, when those that now decide to ignore Christmas will have been long forgotten.

Religions die, when their time has passed, and a better one appears, but you can't kill them.

That is proved by the failure of various religions to kill off their rivals. Religion itself can never die, since it is the expression of man's desire to know what he can never know.

Light is shed on bootlegging and racketeering profits by the fact that Mr. Nitti has recently served 14 months in Leavenworth Prison for failing to pay Uncle Sam any income tax on his three years' share of "Capone profit," amounting to $842,888.

You can imagine how much the "big shots" must have collected if an understrapper gets $300,000 a year, and are not surprised that in our prohibition-depression-crime era, the income of the criminal classes is greater than that of the United States government.

That is not the fault of prohibition, but due to the fact that prohibition did not work out as expected, because you cannot change human nature by the law in this country, any more than the Russians can abolish religion by law in their country.

INGENUITY IN any form fascinates the human mind. Archimedes thinking in his bathtub about the amount of water he displaced solved the problem of "specific gravity" has interested the ages.

A criminal running away from Detective H. G. Howard described in Frank B. Shutts' Miami Herald, interests you, in his small way.

He ran into a restaurant where Mr J. B. Murnan was eating peacefully in a revolving chair. As he went by the alleged criminal seized Mr. Murnan, giving him and his chair a violent spin. Mr. Murnan's outstretched legs, swinging around, upset the pursuing detective and the ingenious spinner of the chair escaped.

9 STRICKEN BY MYSTERY ILLNESS

Probers Seek Cause Of Affliction in Castle Shannon

A dual probe of the strange illness of a Castle Shannon family of four and two nurses who were attending them was under way today.

A physician's belief that escaping gas was responsible for the illness caused an investigation by the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company. Failing to find a leak, company investigators called in the Bureau of Mines.

The stricken are Miss Genevieve Heller, 32, of 19 Pine street, Castle Shannon; her mother, Mrs. Elsie Heller, 60; Mrs. Heller's sister, Miss Esmarilla Mackey, 53; Mrs. Harry Foley, wife of the physician, who was nursing the sick, and Miss Frances Ryan, 19, a nurse.

It was learned later that Josephine Corbett, and a Mrs. Layton, domestics, and another daughter, Mrs. Walter Smith, had been slightly affected.

DOCTOR BLAMES GAS

Miss Heller became ill last Thursday. The following day her mother was stricken. Heller and Miss Mackey became sick Saturday, the former remaining unconscious for two days.

Shortly after she had been called to nurse them, Dr. Foley's wife was stricken. Miss Ryan became ill while attending the family.

It was believed the victims were suffering from the influenza, but Dr. Foley said he thought gas was responsible.

He reported the condition to the gas company. Investigators, after thoroughly testing pipe connections, reported they could find no evidence of escaping gas.

VICTIMS TO BE MOVED

The Bureau of Mines was notified today, and a complete investigation will be made. The family will be removed from the residence while the bureau's investigation is being made.

Dr. Foley said:

"We don't know what kind of gas is causing the trouble. The Bureau of Mines cannot make tests until the patients are removed from the house."

Father Says Bride 'Hypnotized' Son

SEATTLE, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A suit for annulment of his son's marriage on the ground that the bride hypnotized the bridegroom into matrimony was filed here today by Glen Parks, father of 20-year-old Earl E. Parks.

Young Parks married Thelma G. Schwartz, 28, a month ago. His father's complaint contends she was a widow "of strong, dominant, commanding, occult and hypnotic powers, especially when in the slightest degree under the influence of liquor."

Short Dress Battle Wins Wife Divorce

Mrs. Lillian E. Malone, former children's librarian at Carnegie Library, who charged last week that her husband struck her because her dress was short, today was granted a divorce from Dr. Harry N. Malone, of Murray Hill place, by Judge Ralph H. Smith. Testifying, Mrs. Malone said:

"When I came home with a new dress it meant a battle, because of my legs showing."

Extortion Suspect Caught

An extortion plot in which a wealthy businessman and his family were threatened with death was frustrated with the arrest of the alleged perpetrator, the state police announced today.

A. A. Adams, of Frankstown Estates, retired utilities man, was ordered to place a package containing $25,000 under a tree on the Bobolink golf range in Aspinwall in anonymous letters and telephone calls.

Last night six state police, led by Sergt. John Tomek, lay buried in the snow near the tree.

SUSPECT CAPTURED

When a man appeared out of the darkness and picked up the dummy package left by Adams, the police chased him over the driving range and captured him.

He was identified as Fred S. Day, 40, of Crescent Hills, Penn Township.

Day's home is near Adams' in the Frankstown road district.

Adams received the threatening letter three weeks ago as he was preparing for his annual trip to California. He postponed the trip.

MYSTERY PHONE CALL

Yesterday came a telephone call, anonymous. Adams was warned that if he failed to leave the money at the place specified in the letter he and his family would be "blown up."

The state police instructed Adams to carry out the instructions. He did.

Day was taken to the state police barracks at Greensburg. Sergt. Tomek was conferring with District Attorney Andrew T. Park to determine what charges should be brought.

Day was described as an insurance agent and husband of an invalid wife.

NEWS OF DEATH WAITS SHOPPER

While James Horan, of Monessen, is somewhere in Pittsburgh buying Christmas presents, police are looking for him to tell him his younger brotner, Robert, 13, was killed shortly before noon, when his sled skidded under the wheels of a truck.

Robert was coasting down McKee hill, near his home, 662 Reed avenue, Monessen, according to Monessen police, when the accident happened. He was carried to the office of Dr. Thomas B. Herron, where he died of a fractured skull.

Pittsburgh police also were asked to notify Robert's sister, Mrs. Richard Miller, of Pittsburgh.

Dentist Stealing Yule Gift Slain

GRAYMONT, Ga., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Dr. M. G. Vaughan, an Augusta dentist, was slain here today by Marshal R. S. Adams as he attempted to burglarize a store. The doctor told authorities before he died that a desire to get something for his daughter who was coming home for Christmas led him to attempt the robbery. He said he needed money badly.

Raiders Interrupt Helen Morgan's Song

BURNS OPENS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Author in Shackles at Hearing on Appeal Against Chain Gang

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21.—Robert Elliott Burns, literary fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, appeared in shackles today to open his fight before Gov. A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, against extradition to the southern state.

In the New Jersey Assembly Chamber, turned into a temporary courthouse, Gov. Moore heard the argument from counsil for Burns, and representatives of Georgia, as to the reasons Burns should or should not be returned.

Formal service of papers for the extradition was made to Gov. Moore as the hearing opened. Assistant Attorney General John J. Kelly, of Georgia, presented the papers.

PRISONER OPTIMISTIC

Burns, author of the best-seller "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," arrived for the hearing from Newark, where he had been confined in jail.

He was accompanied by a sheriff. He expressed optimism over his chances of winning his battle against the attempt of southern authorities to return him to a prison camp. He said:

"I think I will win because justice is on my side."

Mrs. Catherine Burns, the fugitive's mother, accompanied by another son, the Rev. Vincent Burns, of Palisades, N. J., arrived for the hearing.

Five state troopers were stationed around the hall and in the corridors to keep order.

Burns Got 'Raw Deal,' His Judge Declares

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(Universal.)—Robert Elliott Burns received a "raw deal" when he returned to Georgia to serve out his chain gang sentence, in the opinion of Judge Joseph B. David, before whom Burns was arraigned on his recapture here in 1929. The judge said:

"If I had known in 1929 what I know now I never would have sent him back to Georgia."

Marathon Dancer In Alimony Court

While Anthony Alteri, 27, of Bedford avenue, danced away the months in the recently closed marathon dance at Motor Square Garden, he was falling in arrears in the support of his wife and child, according to the wife, Minnie. She haled him before Judge R. A. Kennedy today and alleged he was $482 in arrears. The case was postponed until January 3. Meanwhile, Alteri must pay his wife $25 on or before December 23.

Pershing's Brother Feared Near Death

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—James F. Pershing, brother of Gen. John J. Pershing, was taken to Manhattan General Hospital today after he had suffered a heart attack at his home. Gen. Pershing was notified in Washington and left immediately for New York.

Hospital authorities said Pershing's condition was serious.

'Visiting' Judges Curbed by High Court

Common Pleas Court judges cannot go "visiting" in the courts of other counties until they have disposed of all cases available before their own courts, according to an order issued today to Pier Dannals, Supreme Court prothonotary here, by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The order, which was sent to the prothonotaries in all Supreme Court districts, said:

"This court is of the opinion that no judge can spare the time within the meaning of the statute (of 1911) unless he first completes the undisposed work ready for disposition in his own district."

Hit-Run Auto Kills Boy Carrying Mother Gift

Struck within a few feet of his home by a hit-and-run driver as he returned from a nearby store with a Christmas gift for his mother, Andrew Neary, Jr., 14, of Sandy Creek road, Penn Township, was fatally injured last night, according to a morgue report.

Constable Sam Bickerstaff, of Penn Township, said the boy, returning from the store with a silk scarf for his mother, was within 100 feet of his home when he was struck. He died en route to West Penn Hospital.

Returning to her home in Perrysville avenue from a bowling party, Mrs. Elizabeth Lightcap, 61, was in Allegheny General Hospital in a serious condition, suffering from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile. Mrs. Lightcap, police said, had alighted from a street car and was crossing the street when hit.

Frank W. Wieseckel, 20, of 4043 Brighton road, driver of the automobile, was at liberty in $1,000 bond pending a hearing on a reckless driving charge.

NEW BANK PLAN LAUNCHED HERE

A definite plan to open a new bank combining the closed Diamond National and Monongahela National banks was being presented to Pittsburghers today for approval and stock subscriptions.

The plan was approved by depositors yesterday following collapse of previous set-ups.

The new bank would have $700,000 in stock, $175,000 in surplus and $175,000 in undivided profits accounts. Fourteen thousand shares of $50 par value stock would be sold at $75 a share.

Formulators of the plan hope to obtain two-thirds of this $1,050,000 from the depositors, one-third from outside sources.

Only when the money is actually paid in can the plan obtain the approval of the United States Comptroller of Currency.

The prospectus for the new institution emphasized the desirability of further consolidations, shortly after opening, with other downtown banks. It was understood today that the possibility of establishing a third banking chain in Pittsburgh is being considered.

Proposed directors for the new institution include James O. Carr, John E. Crawford, Ralph M. Dravo, John B. Eichenauer, T. J. Gillespie, Sr., A. J. Huglin, A. F. Humphrey, Edward E. Rieck and C. D. Wettach.

The Monongehal Bank long has been holding checks for payment of a percentage of deposits pending settlement of reopening plans.

Receiver Robert Gordon, of the Diamond National, is now receiving proof of claim on the closed bank.

Mr. Mellon was born in Unity Township, Westmoreland County. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ella McLaughlin Mellon, and five children.

Family Hiring Under Ban at Mayview Home

BULLETIN.

City Council will begin its actual slashing of the 1933 budget tomorrow morning, it was definitely learned from an authoritative source late today.

Practice of employing both husbands and wives at the City Home and hospital at Mayview must stop, City Council definitely decided at today's budget session, as the newest development in the tax payers' move to curtail municipal and educational expenditures.

Council unanimously passed the regulatory motion made by Councilman Robert Garland who struck at the specific case of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Quigg, chief supervisor and head of the nurses' school, respectively, at Mayview. The husband's salary is $1,920, the wife's $1,766, besides maintenance, Garland said.

HAMMERS QUESTIONED

Garland asked Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of the hospital:

"In these days of stress, do you think it's proper to have a man and wife getting $3,680 and maintenance?"

Referring to an ordinance passed by Council last year for the purpose of preventing "fam-

Sick Republicans Carry 'Ward' In Hospital

Political atmosphere dominated Mercy Hospital today.

In one room was E. V. Babcock, former County Commissioner. In the next room was Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, who has Mayor Kline as a frequent visitor. In another room was Ben Anderson, secretary to Babcock. In another room was Ben Marshall, assistant police superintendent.

All are recovering from colds, except Marshall, who is recovering from injuries received when he was thrown from a horse in the Armistice Day parade.

Said Anderson:

"It certainly looks like the Republicans will carry this ward."

3 ESCAPE HURTS IN RAIL CRASH

Three members of a westbound freight crew who remained in the engine when it crashed into a stationary freight train at Parkview, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, escaped injury early today. Their engine and 20 cars of the two trains were derailed.

Today railroad officers are investigating to determine the cause of the wreck.

A southbound train from Oil City to Scully was standing in front of the Workhouse when a freight train from Altoona to Conway plowed into it. Engineer C. N. Hartman, of Sharpsburg; Fireman John Askins and Brakeman W. T. Bergman, of Blairsville, were in the engine of the latter train when the crash occurred. Conductor R. A. Steele, of Blairsville, was in the caboose.

In the crash, seven cars and the engine of the moving train and 13 cars of the standing train were derailed. Rails were torn up for 300 feet. Traffic was blocked for several hours.

First 'Hello Girl' Dies at Age of 80

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. John J. McDonnell, 80, who said she was the world's first "Hello Girl," died here yesterday.

Mrs. McDonnell lived at Haverhill, Mass., in the same house where Alexander Graham Bell was experimenting with the telephone.

WETS BEAT '2.75' LIMIT ON BREW

Drys Lose in Tests As Roll Call on Measure Nears

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The 3.2 per cent beer bill sailed blithely toward passage in the House of Representatives late today, judging from the vigor with which the members shouted down amendments to lighten both its alcoholic content and the tax to be imposed.

One attempt after another to alter the measure as approved by committee, carrying as it does a $5 a barrel tax, was frustrated by legislators on edge from the strain of hours of dispute.

Watched by galleries in which women predominated, the Democratic leadership succeeded in having turned aside efforts both by drys and wets to rewrite various clauses.

'2.75 BEER' BLOCKED

An amendment by Representative Michener (Rep.), of Michigan, to cut the alcoholic content to 2.75 per cent by weight, was rejected by 124 to 75.

Representative Palmisano (Dem.), of Maryland, failed when he sought to have the tax cut to $3 a barrel, on the contention that this would make a nickle glass of beer possible where a $5 tax would prohibit it.

On a viva voce vote, the House declined to put in the bill a statement that 3.2 per cent was non-intoxicating, as had been wanted by Representative O'Conner (Dem.), of New York.

Arguments again were made, as on yesterday, against the constitutionality of the legislation. Supporting Michener's 2.75 per cent amendment, Representative Wood (Rep.), of Indiana, said he believed "four per cent is intoxicating."

The 3.2 per cent by weight is 4 per cent alcoholic content by volume.

Wood declared:

"There is another feature about this beer bill that makes it ridiculous. That is the provision that it can not be shipped into dry states. If it is non-intoxicating, you have no more right to prevent its shipment than that of tea or coffee.

"I think that feature would cause the Supreme Court to declare it unconstitutional."

Representative Kunz (Dem.), of Illinois, just previously had said "what this country wants is its

President Now Picks 'Santa' Postmaster

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—So much is in the name of Santa Claus that the President now has to appoint postmasters for the little Indiana town that bears the title.

The influx of mail into the post-office there from persons seeking the postmark for Christmas cards, letters and packages, caused the office to be raised to third class rating. Mr. Hoover today reappointed James F. Martin as Santa Claus postmaster.

Sister of Mrs. Thaw Sues Peer for Divorce

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Lady Furness, an American beauty who married into the English peerage, filed suit for divorce today against her husband, the shipbuilding magnate.

The Asociated Press was informed that the grounds for the suit will be misconduct. The suit is expected to be heard at the next term of court, but the hearing probably will be quiet, with no more publicity than is necessary.

Since her marriage in 1926 Lady Furness has been prominent in English social circles and seen frequently in the company of the Prince of Wales at charity balls and at other events which the British heir attended.

Lady Furness, formerly Mrs. Thelma Morgan Converse, is a twin sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, of New York, and a sister of Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

She was married to Lord Furness in 1926 at a quiet ceremony of which only a few of their intimate friends had been told.

She divorced Converse in Los Angeles. Subsequently it was reported that she was engaged to marry Richard Bennett, the American actor. This was denied.

Lord Furness is chairman of the Furness Shipbuilding Company, Ltd., and of several other shipping and industrial concerns. His first wife died in 121.

HOOVER TO IGNORE ROOSEVELT REBUFF, PUSH DEBT BOARD

CONGRESS FAILS TO SUPPORT PARLEYS

Democrats Expect to Handle Matter in Own Way

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Gov. Roosevelt has definitely refused to co-operate with President Hoover in organizing a commission to examine war debt revision, disarmament and world economics.

Faced with this rebuff the President plans none the less to go ahead with negotiations with European debtors along the lines outlined in his special message to Congress, White House officials declared.

Without his successor's co-operation, however, the President, it was conceded, will be able to make little headway.

REPLY GUARDED

The White House closely guarded the contents of Gov. Roosevelt's telegraphic communication to the President, but it was learned the President-elect had stood generally on his previous position that the responsibility for handling the debts rested with the Hoover administration until March 4.

The President-elect indicated he had definite debt proposals of his own which he planned to pursue after his inauguration.

President Hoover, playing a lone hand, nevertheless is working on plans to create the commission, and hopes to appoint the body before he leaves Friday for a 10-day Florida vacation, it was indicated at the White House.

CONGRESS OPPOSED

Congress has served notice it won't authorize the commission, fearing it would become an agency for ultimate debt cancellation.

Intimations were given the President has already sent messages to prospective members of the commission.

Among those prominently mentioned were Owen D. Young, New York industrialist, who conferred Monday in Albany with Gov. Roosevelt; Norman H. Davis, Democrat, who has been carrying out missions in Europe for the President; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker, and Senators Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and Swanson (Dem.), of Virginia, an American delegate to the Geneva Arms Conference.

Britain Opposes Debt Arbitration Plan

PARIS, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Great Britain will informally counsel France against pursuing an idea under consideration by officials of having the question of payment of the December interest on the American debt submitted to arbitration, according to reports in diplomatic circles.

It is stated that the British feel this would not in the long run contribute to successful settlement of the debt problem and that resort to arbitration would be undesirable because it would be founded on the presumption that the question can not be settled through the regular diplomatic channels.

However, the British are said to be strong for the French idea that a general conference or general negotiations should be adopted for treating the debts.

Germans for Easing Of 'Private Debts'

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—The opening gun in a campaign for revision of Germany's private debts was fired today by Dram Alfred Hugenberg, publisher and leader of the Nationalist party.

Dr. Hugenberg pleaded for reduction of existing interest rates to 1½ per cent and warned that Germany would collapse unless a "fair pact" between debtors and creditors is concluded shortly.

Bankers to Reform Finances of Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—A group of Philadelphia bankers who supplied the city with $3,000,000 to pay overdue payrolls today was reported uniting to demand a sweeping reorganization of Philadelphia city and county finances.

Mayor J. Hampton Moore expressed a willingness to co-operate, and it was believed a bankers' commission to recommend changes which would place the city and county finances on a sound basis might be formed.

beer and good beer of a sufficient alcoholic content to be palatable."

'MILK' MOTION FAILS

An attempt of Representative Mapes (Rep.), of Michigan, to include in the bill a declaration that "beer has the same ingredients as milk" failed.

The House roared with laughter as Representative Sirovich (Dem.), of New York, who yesterday told the House beer had the same ingredients as milk, made a point of order, asserting the Mapes proposal was "not germane."

Sirovich gained the floor through a perfunctory motion to assert that when he talked yesterday on beer and milk, "I did not talk in a facetitious way."

Regulations to require federal licenses for persons who would sell the beer in less than five-gallon lots, were proposed in an amendment by Representative Vinson (Dem.), of Kentucky, a member of the Ways and Means Committee supporting the measure.

The regulations would forbid the sale of beer in saloons or in states and the District of Columbia if laws in those political subdivisions forbid it.

Borah Opposes Clause Prohibiting Saloons

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—A declaration against including in any repeal amendment a clause prohibiting the return of the saloon was made by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, a member of the Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee which today offered a tentative draft of a repeal resolution.

The resolution, which was not officially adopted by the sub-committee, embraced three main points. One was the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, another the protection of dry states, and the third, a clause giving Congress power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold.

Referring to the third clause, Borah declared:

"My own view is that once you recognie the sale of intoxicating liquor and turn the matter back to the states, the federal government loses all power as a practical proposition to control the manner of sale by the place where the liquor is to be consumed."

HATER OF AUTOS KILLED BY ONE

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Carbey Cogley, 75, who had an antipathy to automobiles and never rode in them, was struck and killed by one today.

Cogley was struck on a highway as he walked to the County Home for breakfast.

Police said Arthur C. Guthrie, of Indiana, a member of the Kiski faculty, was the driver of the car owned by his passenger, Regis A. McKnight, of Indiana, athletic director at the Curwensville (Pa.) School.

Guthrie told police he did not see Cogley until a short distance from him. He said he swerved the car, but was unable to avoid the accident.

Canada Exports Eels to Germany

MONTREAL.—(INS.)—About 100,000 pounds of eels are exported yearly by Canada to Germany and the United States.

STATE ECONOMY PLAN PUSHED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Economy is the watchword of the 1933 General Assembly, to which will be presented at least three programs proposing savings in state costs.

The Republican organization will back recommendations of the Joint Legislative Finance Investigating Committee, which has been questioning State Department heads about their appropriations, administration costs, receipts and the extent to which economies can be made.

The administration's program will be revealed when Gov. Pinchot reads his budget message late in January or early in February. Organization Republicans and Democrats assert the budget must be balanced and jobless relief be provided through economy. They oppose additional taxation unless required for unemployment relief. The administration holds that economies can only balance the budget and that more revenue is needed for relief.

White to Put 'Spot' On Salary Cut Foes

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Gov. George White, in an official statement, said he "hopes to direct the whole force of public opinion upon each and every public official" who refuses voluntarily to reduce his salary. He asserted:

"It is a moral obligation for officials to take a voluntary cut.

"This is no time for salary slackers."

KING QUITTING P. S. C., GRUBBS UP FOR JOB

Pinchot Men of County Renew Demand for Recognition

By MARK SHIELDS

Dr. Clyde L. King will resign as chairman of the Public Service Commission December 31, according to a report from Harrisburg.

Gov. Pinchot and Dr. King today said no change would be made at this time.

The report is he will be succeeded as chairman by Commissioner C. Jay Goodnough, of Cameron County, unless there is a change in the plans of Gov. Pinchot.

King will be reappointed Secretary of the Department of Revenue, a post he filled at the beginning of the Pinchot administration, and which he vacated only a few months ago to reorganize the Public Service Commission along Pinchot lines when the Governor obtained control of the rate-making body. That, at least, is the understanding here.

With the retirement of King, leaving one vacancy on the Commission, Allegheny County friends of Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs will renew insistence to the Governor that Grubbs be selected as King's successor as a Commission member.

Before Goodnough was named to the Commission, December 1, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Pinchot leader here, had urged Grubbs for the place, later putting him forward as timber to fill a vacancy in Common Pleas Court. In both of these efforts McGovern failed. He and other Pinchot adherents here are known to feel strongly that it is time the Governor was recognizing this section through appointment on the Public Service Commission.

King left the Revenue Department against his wishes, and accepted the Public Service Commission place only on the demand of the Governor, and an assurance that his service there would be of short duration.

His assistant, Deputy Secretary Leon Metzger, was named head of the department, but no new deputy was appointed. The way was left open for King to return as head of the department with Metzger stepping back to the deputy's post. Metzger is known to be willing to do this.

'Temperament' Parts Janet Gaynor, Lawyer

JANET GAYNOR . . . SHE AND LYDELL PECK HAVE SEPARATED

Miss Gaynor, the lovely film actress, today living where her husband isn't, a situation attributed to "clashes of temperament." They've made it plain that there's no talk of a divorce—yet.

PENSION CURB PROPOSED

A bill making it illegal for an employe pensioned by one municipality to obtain work from another and continue to draw his pension, may be introduced in the Legislature by County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield, he said today. Mansfield declared during discussion of the county pension system with Commissioner C. C. McGovern that he was considering such a measure.

It was pointed out persons pensioned by the city are working for the county. The commissioners directed Leo Riordan, head of the Bureau of Investigation, to check up on those pensioned by the county to determine their physical condition, the amount of the pensions, and whether they are working on other jobs.

Both the city and county pension systems are being investigated. George B. Buck, of New York, investigating for the county, said the county pension fund must be reorganized at once, and the assets will permit payment of only 12 cents on each dollar. To put the fund on a sound basis, he said, the Commissioners would need to make an additional appropriation each year of more than $450,000.

Screen 'Pollyanna's' Romance Goes On Rocks

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—In the old conflict between marriage and career, marriage came out second best again in Hollywood today.

Janet Gaynor, winsome little exponent of Pollyanna roles on the screen, and her lawyer husband, Lydell Peck, have separated.

Clashing temperaments and the requirements of their careers brought about the end of another of the cinema colony's "perfect marriages."

In somewhat the same fashion that Ann Harding announced the end of her marriage with Harry Bannister, Miss Gaynor gave out the news of her separation from Peck. No divorce is contemplated, at least immediately.

Peck remained at their home in Hollywood while Miss Gaynor is residing at the home of her mother.

Miss Gaynor and Peck met at a Hollywood social function and soon thereafter were married September 11, 1929. From a movie extra Miss Gaynor, a native of Philadelphia, rapidly rose to stardom in the swiftest success on record in Hollywood. She starred in "Seventh Heaven," "Sunrise," "Street Angel," and more recently in "Tess of the Storm Country." She co-starred with Charles Farrell in most of her pictures.

Judge Rules One Drink Intoxicating

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Judge John W. Fenehout, of the Municipal Court, has ruled that it takes only one drink to make an automobile driver drunk.

The ruling was given in the case of Theodore G. Erickson, charged with driving while intoxicated, whose attorneys admitted their client had had two bottles of "beer."

U. S. Acts to Halt 'Gas' Tax Evasion

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—To break up importers' evasion of the 2½ cents a gallon tax on imported gasoline, the Treasury today ordered the same rate levied on foreign naptha, which is said has been imported in large quantities for conversion into motor fuel.

2 COMMISSIONS SPLIT ON COAL RATE CUT

State Body Favors Larger Rail Slash Than I. C. C.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Although agreeing that freight rates should be cut on bituminous shipments from Central and Western Pennsylvania, the Public Service Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission differ on the extent of the reduction.

The P. S. C. recommends $5,000,000 annual reductions; the I. C. C., $1,000,000.

Both groups issued tentative reports yesterday as the result of the first joint study in one case of the entire eastbound bituminous rate structure.

The P. S. C.'s report was on the complaint of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau and others against the Baltimore and Ohio and other railroads. The respondents have 19 days remaining in which to file exceptions.

The case, the Commission declared, "affects the future of the miners and their families and the stability of the mining towns throughout Central and Western Pennsylvania." It added:

"Within the last 20 years Pennsylvania has seen a disastrous decline in its soft coal industry, a decline due in no small part to a freight rate structure that favors soft coal fields hundreds of miles farther away from the large markets than are the Pennsylvania fields."

The Commission said its report proposes to cut all rates to representative points from the Clearfield base group, and recommended that the rate to Philadelphia for trans-shipment within Pennsylvania, be cut from $2.59 a ton to $2.07.

The Interstate Commerce Commission did not recommend a general rate reduction. It suggested shipments of coal to cement factories be cut from $2.96 to $2.84 per gross ton, and proposed some reductions to Chambersburg, Greencastle, Paterson, N. J., the Delaware peninsula and destinations along Long Island Sound.

'FAMILY HIRING' BANNED

ily" hiring, Councilman Harry Little asked Dr. Hammers if he had requested either of them to resign. Hammers reminded Little that Council had provided in a second resolution that resignations should be asked only as soon as places could be properly filled. Little offered to get him some applications.

Councilman Garland declared: "The principle is wrong and should be corrected in this budget. If you don't dismiss them, their salaries should be cut."

Final action was deferred on the elimination of the mental health clinic in the Department of Public Welfare on request of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director.

DISCUSS MERGER

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, was to review with Council today the ordinance consolidating six of his bureaus under a Bureau of Maintenance.

Following yesterday's meeting of the Board of Public Education in which the board was charged with "poor business judgment" and "extravagance" and begged to act in behalf of the taxpayers, it was announced that the board will meet again to discuss the possibility of reconsidering the 1933 millage recently set at 11¾ mills.

Marcus Aaron, chairman of the board, gave no indication of a possibility of reducing the tax rate.

SURPLUS CITED

I. Leonard Aronson, speaking for the new Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League, asked that the board use a portion of its surplus, which he placed at $1,568,000, to bring about a tax reduction next year.

Aronson suggested that there is a possibility that the taxpayers will withhold money from the board, unless there is a further reduction in expenditures.

Representatives of the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, the Oakland Board of Trade, the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade, the Homewood Board of Trade and the Hill District Taxpayers' League asked for relief for taxpayers whose incomes have been reduced and whose homes have been endangered by high taxes.

'Chinese' Suicide Hint In Death of Doctor

PARMA, Mich., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The strange death of Dr. Harry C. Hubbard, 61-year-old physician, under conditions similar to those which preceded the deaths of two of his patients little more than a week before, was the subject of an official investigation today.

Dr. Hubbard died in convulsions, becoming ill shortly after he mounted the steps from the basement in the building which houses his office. George W. Hunn, 41, and W. J. Foor, 51, died in convulsions on December 10, within two hours after they were treated by the physician.

Pieter Keyser, Jackson County chemist, today began analyses of the contents of the doctor's stomach, of capsules found in the basement of his office, and of medicine similar in appearance to that the physician gave to Foor and Hunn. He said his tests might require a week.

Friends of the physician revealed today that he had at times argued in favor of what he said was an ancient Chinese custom, whereby a physician who made a mistake that resulted in the death of a patient, took the same potion himself.

An inquest has been ordered into Dr. Hubbard's death, but a jury which already has been impanelled probably will not be summoned until the chemist makes his report.

The others selected were Jane Addams, founder of Hull House in Chicago, 99,147 votes; Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross, 96,139; Frances E. Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, 90,303; Susan B. Anthony, woman suffrage leader, 84,321; Helen Keller, deaf and blind lecturer, 84,239; Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," 73,999; Julia Ward Howe, composer of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," 72,276; Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader, 70,489; Amelia Earhart Putnam, the aviatrix, 43,399; Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke College, 40,831, and Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke and delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, 36,855.

Likenesses of the 12 women will appear in an appropriate frieze in the council's exhibit in the Social Science Building at the Chicago World's Fair.

TECHNOCRATS SEE SCRAPPING OF PRESENT GOVERNMENTS

OLD IDEAS MUST BE DISCARDED, SAVANTS SAY

Commodities 'Price System' End Forecast

(Editor's Note—Following is the first of a series of articles on technocracy, the new theory of government announced recently, which has aroused international interest and controversy.)

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service Science Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Formal explanation of the world's newest governmental idea, technocracy, which has aroused a hurricane of controversy in recent weeks, will be made next week at the annual mid-winter meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Atlantic City.

This first formal presentation of the new theory to the association, which has the largest scientific membership of any in the world, will be made by Prof. Walter Hautenstraugh, of Columbia University, he informed this writer today from his New Jersey home.

Prof. Hautenstraugh, of the university's industrial engineering department, is one of the 350 eminent men of the world who now call themselves "Technocrats," after completing a series of industrial studies, chiefly in this country.

NOTED SUPPORTERS

The word "Technocrat is used in the same sense that a "Democrat" uses the word to signify he believes in the principles of democracy, or a "Monarchist" uses his term to denote his belief in a monarchial form of government.

Among the present growing band of "Technocrats" are Dr. Richard C. Tolman, of California Institute of Technology, a close friend of Albert Einstein; Frederick Lee Ackerman, New York architect, and Bassett Jones, New York electrical engineer. Numerous foreign men of eminence are listed as "Technocrats."

The Technocrats claim that what they call Technocracy has developed over the past 100 years, and particularly in the last 30 years, until now it stands as a series of immutable facts which will force mankind, but chiefly America and Europe, to scrap all democratic, monarchist and dictatorial forms of government.

They claim further this scrapping of democracy must begin in this country within the next 18 months to five years.

"PRICE SYSTEM" HIT

Among the fundamental tenets of the Technocrats is the contention that the "price system" of distributing or producing commodities must end, not for any temporary period, but forever—because machine and power production has reached such a pitch that a minor fraction of available man power in any mechanized country can over-supply all normal commodity wants.

Out of their 12-year study of conditions in this country the Technocrats have emerged with data to support these contentions:

"That the terrific rush of mechanization of our civilization and the vast increased energy output rate per man on this continent (an increase of 8,766,000 times in the past 30 years), has plunged the entire continent into the closing days of an era.

"That we now have no room for 50 per cent of our 14,000,000 unemployed even if our factories were operating at 1929 peak production.

"That at the present downward rate we will have 25,000,000 unemployed by 1934, without taking into account any acceleration from disorder."

DIRECT QUOTATIONS

The above three paragraphs are direct quotations from the second article on Technocracy, published in the current issue of the New Outlook, edited by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The Technocrats estimate, from studies of plant and power resources in this country, that available workmen in this country, employed four hours a day four days a week, could supply every normal want of the population with commodities ranging from homes and automobiles to the most elaborate array of foodstuffs and apparel.

They seek to show that under the present "price system," however, this prosperity and comfort is withheld from the great majority because of the salary system of employment and the competitive methods of commodity distribution.

They claim most articles, such as razor blades, automobiles, shoes and clothing, are deliberately made of shoddy stuff and poor materials so that more of these articles may be sold and the constant "demand" be kept up to a level where dividends can be paid continuously on industrial stocks and bonds.

QUANTITY OVER QUALITY

They claim that with present scientific knowledge applied seriously shoes could be made to wear two to three years; clothes for five or six years; automobiles for 10 years, and razor blades for a lifetime. They charge that this is not done because production, under the "price system," requires industrialists to produce on a quantity, not a quality, basis.

Howard Scott, described by Prof. Hautenstraugh "as a great engineer," is director of the studies of the Technocrats. At present he is working with the professor at Columbia and is aided by 100 assistants supplied by the Architects Emergency Relief Committee of New York.

QUAKE SHAKES FAR WEST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A strong earthquake shook virtually the entire western United States, embracing about a fifth of the nation, last night. Seismologists said it was the most severe in the area since 1925.

No serious damage was reported from the series of shocks which began at 10:10 p. m. (1:10 a. m. Pittsburgh time) and continued with diminishing intensity until 11:15 o'clock. The quake centered in Nevada, where windows were shattered.

Clocks were stopped in cities as widely separated as Salt Lake City, Utah, and Fresno, Cal. Chandeliers swayed, pictures were thrown awry and some crockery broken.

At Sacramento, Cal., police on duty in the state capitol building said the structure swayed and creaked. The tallest building in the city, a 16-story office building, swayed noticeably. Many persons in office buildings, hotels and apartments rushed into the streets.

Father Fined After Row With Children

Accused of returning home intoxicated as his wife lay ill in bed, spilling hot coffee on a daughter, and knocking down his son with a chair, Frederick Schaefer, of 1402 Spring Garden avenue, was fined $15 or 20 days in jail in Morals Court today.

Schaefer told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones he works every other week for the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. He said he obtained liquor yesterday and knew nothing of his conduct.

Navy Sale of Old Clothing Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The Senate today adopted a resolution authorizing the Navy to sell at a nominal price its surplus of old clothing for relief.

Mrs. Snipes Should Die, Says Widow of Victim

Mother of 4 Scores Killer Awaiting Stork and Death

ROCK HILL, S. C., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—This is the story of two women, one an expectant mother condemned to die for murder, the other a widow with four small children, facing a life of labor to rear them.

The first is Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, who shot to death Rural Policeman Elliott Harris. The other is Mrs. Eula Harris, widow of the slain York County officer, who believes Mrs. Snipes should die for killing her husband.

Mrs. Snipes, 29, the mother of one child, expects the birth of another next month. While women and welfare workers plead with Gov. Blackwood to save her from death in the electric chair next April 7, she is sewing baby clothes in the women's ward at the state penitentiary.

Mrs. Harris, left with $1,000 insurance money and $300 raised in a subscription fund by newspapers when her husband was shot, is studying shorthand and typing in the hope that she may be able to support her children, the oldest of whom is six. Mrs. Harris said:

"I feel no elation over Mrs. Snipes' conviction and sentence, but I feel if we are to have capital punishment that it should be administered to any deserving it—man or woman. She had time to consider it—she took all we had.

"I don't feel that if it were left to me that I would change her sentence. I do not think she regrets it. I don't see that her becoming a mother should alter the case. I have been a mother, four times."

Mrs. Snipes contends she shot the officer in self-defense. In her cell she said:

"I don't think I should die this way. I am not prepared to go this way."

'Sherlock' Baffled By Yacht's Burning

HADLYME, Conn., Dec. 21.—(Universal.)—His famous pipe dangling limply from his mouth, Sherlock Holmes was a witness yesterday to a tragedy he could not solve.

As his 142-foot yacht, the Aunt Polly, went up in smoke, William Gillette, know to millions for his portrayal of the Conan Doyle role, stood by helplessly.

EX-KAISER ILL, UNDER GUARD

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The former German kaiser, Wilhelm II, suffering from a cold and rheumatism, was confined to his room in Doorn Castle today by order of his court physician.

Measures to guard him against future intruders have been again intensified. A German, believed by the police to be mentally deranged, was caught crouching in a castle room recently with a dagger and pistol on his person. All locks to outer gates and also to some of the doors of the castle itself have been renewed.

Chains by which the dogs were kept in the grounds have been lengthened in order to enable the animals to intercept suspected persons at longer range.

FLICK ON TRIAL IN KLINE 'FIX'

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 21.—W. D. McBride, who pleaded no defense to a charge of embracery, today was the first witness in the trial of Charles G. Flick, of Bakerstown, accused of attempting to fix veniremen called for services in the Kline-Succop case.

McBride said he met Flick in Butler on April 18 and Flick furnished him with a list of prospective jurors and told him there was a chance to make some money by seeing some of the jurors.

Tomorrow Robert J. Cunningham, Pittsburgh contractor, is scheduled to go on trial.

Negley said the perjury charge against Jacob Marcus, produce dealer, arrested during the Kline-Succop trial last May, probably would be quashed, owing to the failure of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of Allegheny County, to produce needed witnesses.

PEG'S PAJAMA STORY STIRS HER JURY

Freddie Rich's Blonde Fights Divorce Suit With Fashion Talk

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Popular girls don't wear slips. They don't eat bread and butter. They order food and then go out without eating it, but do not protest paying the bill. They don't own pink silk pajamas.

These glamorous details of life in a luxurious New York hotel were supplied by Peggy Lawton Rich, whose husband's suit for divorce will go to the jury late today. Jack De Ruyter, Park avenue playboy, is named corespondent.

They were given in an effort to make 12 good men and true understand how frightening, how desolate, existence can be, when your husband—Freddie Rich, the orchestra leader and radio favorite—puts you out, at least according to Peggy's story.

NO SLIPS FOR PEGGY

Freddie's detectives and one of his friends have testified they saw Peggy in bed in the wee sma' hours of May 14 wearing a white slip. This could not have been, Peggy says, because she has no white slip. They also said Jack De Ruyter was there. Peggy says he was in the next room with another man, Gustave Steinacher, Columbia School of Architecture student. The blonde Peggy, former Ziegfeld girl, declared:

"Slips have not been in style for seven or eight years."

The jurors leaned forward, wrinkling their brows with interest. Women spectators, a trifle puzzled, asked her when she stepped down from the stand what she mean. She explained:

"Slips are petticoats. I don't own a petticoat of any kind. Just the underthings that are pleated from the waist down are the kind I wear. I don't believe any popular girl wears slips any more. It's just—not in style."

EXPLAINS SWEETLY

The bread and butter episode was a matter of health, not fashion, however. Her husband's lawyer, David Haar, was trying to show there were two orders of bread and butter for three persons, according to Mrs. Rich's story that both Steinacher and De Ruyter were present on the night of the raid. Mrs. Rich sweetly explained:

"But I never have bread and butter. I've been on a diet for a year."

Haar passed on to the cheese sandwich, in his effort to show that the handsome social registerite was hanging around quite a long time the day he was found in the suite by detectives. Peggy said:

"Oh, that! No doubt someone ordered it, and then we left to go to dinner at the Biltmore without waiting for it."

Haar asked:

"But you signed the check for it?"

Peggy replied:

"I very often ordered lunch or breakfast and then left it untouched."

She was a very unhappy girl when De Ruyter met her by chance in a hotel lobby, she said, and she asked him to call.

ROBBERS LOOT COURTHOUSE IN LISBON, O.

Cracksmen Blow Safes, Escape With Cash, Sheriff's Guns

LISBON, O., Dec. 21.—A robber gang raiding the Columbiana County Courthouse early today ripped open two safes, attempted to blow open another, ransacked five offices and escaped with $318, a submachine gun and a high-powered rifle.

Heavy coats stolen from the surveyor's office, were used to blanket the vault in the treasurer's office on the second floor before the charge was exploded. The coats were re-inforced by several boxes of automobile license plates, one of which was blown through a window. The combination knob was blown off the treasurer's safe.

DOOR BLOWN OFF

In the auditor's office the safe door was ripped off and the robbers obtained $318 in cash. The safe in the sheriff's office was damaged and the robbers took the machine gun and rifle. Papers were strewn about in the clerk of court's office but nothing of value was taken.

The raid is believed to have been staged during a barn fire nearby at 4 a. m. At 5 o'clock the janitors reporting for work discovered the robbery.

Sheriff M. J. Barlow said the damage to the various offices was slight. He said the robbers entered by breaking a window in the surveyor's office on the first floor. The courthouse is in the square in the center of town.

EXPERTS AWAITED

Barlow said he had not determined whether the robbers had used dynamite or nitro glycerin. He was awaiting fingerprint experts from Youngstown.

According to the sheriff, money taken in by county offices has been deposited late yesterday. Only money from licenses issued late in the afternoon was in the auditor's office. Some checks were in the sheriff's vault, but no cash.

WINTER BEGINS TONIGHT

Winter makes its official appearance at 8:15 o'clock tonight. Today is the shortest day of the year.

December already has established low temperature record for recent years, and for the first time in the past six years coasting fatalities have occurred during the month in Allegheny County. Four boys have been killed and another is in a critical condition.

So far this month the average temperature is 31 degrees, while the average for the past 56 years is 33.8 degrees. Sub-zero temperature was recorded by the government weather bureau during the month for the first time since 1917. The official temperature December 13 was one degree below zero. The mercury touched five below in December, 1917, and zero in 1924 and 1925.

These records do not take into account the 21 degrees below registered on a tested thermometer December 13 near Mt. Lebanon.

Warmer weather today brought a halt to tobogganing and skating at North and South Parks. The 10 days in which thousands enjoyed the snow and ice in the parks was the longest period in which the facilities have been in use.

Want to Get 'Fired?' Try Being Careless

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Here are a few hints on getting "fired."

If you're a banker or an insurance man—try being tardy or discourteous.

Perhaps you're in the publishing business—poor spelling will do the trick.

But the easiest way to get fired is—be careless.

H. Chandler Hunt, assistant principal of Meriden High School, Meriden, Conn., and a graduate student at the Boston University school of education, listed the above after a survey of 76 business concerns, covering every type of industry. Hunt declared:

"Carelessness is the outstanding reason for involuntary termination of employment.

"The lack of proper character traits and not lack of specific skill, is responsible for both firing and for lack of advancement. This plainly indicates that our greatest failure is in character development. Our high schools should not be turning out pupils of such character that they may be fired for lack of essential personality traits."

Hunt listed as the 10 most common causes for loss of one's job:

Carelessness, non-co-operation, laziness, absence from work for reasons other than illness, dishonesty, attention to things other than office work during office hours, lack of initiative, lack of ambition, tardiness, and lack of loyalty.

YULETIDE PARTY FOR PATIENTS

Patients of the Tuberculosis League Hospital were to be guests this afternoon at a Christmas party in the hospital auditorium, sponsored by the Ogontz Alumnae Association of Western Pennsylvania. Mrs. Albert Barr was to be general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Robert Grove, Mrs. Donald Baum, Mrs. Harold Williams, Mrs. James Graves, president of the association, and Mrs. William Birmingham.

Mrs. J. Paul Warner, general chairman of the seal sale of the Tuberculosis League, said today that encouraging gains in the sale of seals had been noted in the past few days. The booth in charge of Mrs. Charles Delphey, of the Unitarian Alliance, in the Postoffice Building, led all others yesterday in the sale of seals.

CLACK ESTATE TO WIDOW, SON

Mrs. Mildred Van Dyke Clack, of 927 Sheridan avenue, widow of Christopher T. Clack, who died May 18, 1931, in Germany, will share, with her 4-year-old son Jerry, in a net estate of $147,270.

Clack was in charge of the European offices of the Blaw-Knox International Company and died intestate, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed in New York.

Mrs. Clack is a native of Pittsburgh. Her late husband was born in Virginia. They lived in London for some time and later moved to Berlin.

Blythe Paintings To Be Shown Here

Sixteen paintings by David G. Blythe, which have been discovered in East Liverpool, O., are being lent for an exhibition of the artist's work, opening tomorrow at Carnegie Institute. Blythe, Pittsburgh artist of the pre-Civil War period, was born in East Liverpool and painted portraits of many of its prominent citizens. The pictures in East Liverpool were unearthed largely through the efforts of H. B. Barth, secretary of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce.

COUNTY CLAIM GETS HEARING

The County Commissioners have been notified that the Public Service Commission will hold a further hearing January 11 on the county's claim of more than $300,000 from the city as damage costs incurred in construction of the Sixteenth Street Bridge. Several years ago Attorney Mortimer B. Lesher, special counsel for the Commissioners, will handle the case for the county.

When the county decided to build the span, the city agreed to pay property damages. As the approaches passed over railroad tracks, the Public Service Commission held a hearing and approved the agreement.

The city has paid only $40,000, the cost of changing street grades. The amount due the county is approximately $320,000, Lesher said.

2 BOYS RESCUED AS HOME BURNS

Two boys, John Monticello, 4, and his brother, Louis, 10, were carried to safety, and three other persons were routed from their home in night attire when fire partly destroyed the three-story stone dwelling of R. C. Kelley, of 635 Ridge Field road, Mt. Lebanon, early today.

Aroused by smoke when clothes, hanging near a water heater in the basement, became ignited, Kelley carried his son from the smoke-filled dwelling. His wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Anastasia Johnson, escaped unaided. Mr. Kelley carried his two nephews from the building. Mrs. Johnson suffered slight injury when she slipped on the ice.

Mt. Lebanon volunteer firemen estimated damage at $2,000.

CASH GONE, MAN ON WAY HOME

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 21.—Ralph Graham, local steel worker, will be home for Christmas, but not in the bountiful role of Santa Claus he might have played to his wife and five children last September.

Three months ago he disappeared with an inheritance of $2,100, he told police in St. Louis, Mo., as he boarded a train to return. He had $7 left.

Graham had asked police to ascertain if a warrant charging him with desertion had been issued. This message went back to the St. Louis police:

"No, tell him to come home at once."

STORY OF GIRL HITS GUY ALIBI

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Police said today they had found, in the statement of a girl, the first definite break in the alibi of William J. Guy, young soldier of fortune, charged with the killing of Walter Wanderwell, professional traveler.

They said Sylvia Anderson, Glendale lunchroom employe, a friend of Guy's, told them she saw the accused man in an automobile on a Glendale street at 6:45 p. m. on the day Wanderwell was mysteriously shot and killed aboard his schooner yacht, the Carma, in Long Beach harbor.

Guy claimed that at about 6:45 p. m. he was at dinner in the home of his friend, Edward De Larm, at Glendale. De Larm also said Guy was there until 9 p. m. The shooting took place at about 9:10 p. m. The harbor is 30 miles from Glendale.

PARK SEEKING 'NIGHT RIDERS'

Questioning of men who petitioned for recount of votes in 12 districts was continued today by District Attorney Andrew T. Park. Park has indicated he is seeking evidence on which to arrest "night riders" who are believed to have tampered with the ballots in a dozen boxes.

Men from several precincts of the Twenty-third Ward, Scott Township and Carnegie were examined yesterday. Others have been subpenaed for today and tomorrow, while on Friday all the justices of the peace and aldermen who had custody of the 12 ballot boxes have been summoned to Park's office. The questioning of the witnesses is being done by First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt and County Detective David Drexler.

WALESBURG, Col., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Officials of Calumet No. 1 coal mine at Delcarbon today said the placing of rock dust in the mine as a safety measure saved the lives of 67 men in a mysterious explosion.

The explosion yesterday killed a miner, Roy Mitchell, father of four children, and seriously injured Tom Somsky. Mine officials said the rock dust confined the explosion to a small area and neutralized it.

PAY REDUCED IN WILMERDING

Salaries of Wilmerding police and firemen were reduced by the borough Council last night in an effort to meet the budget for 1933.

Effective January 1, the salary of the police chief will be reduced from $175 monthly to $157.50; police captains will receive 50 cents an hour instead of 55 cents, and the six patrolmen will be reduced from 50 cents to 45 cents an hour. The patrolmen work 12 hours a day, six days a week.

Volunteer firemen will receive 63 cents an hour for fighting fires and 45 cents an hour for cleaning apparatus. The present rate is 70 cents an hour while fighting fire and 50 cents for cleaning apparatus.

Wages of the volunteer firemen were slashed to conform with those of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company fire department, whose members answer all borough alarms.

FOOD STRIKER NOW OVEREATS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Dr. Arthur Kraus, philosophy instructor at City College, just swings from one extreme to another, it seemed today.

Nine days ago he began a hunger strike in protest against anti-Semetic demonstrations in Poland.

Monday he broke the fast because he "couldn't die in peace"—having been shifted from his apartment to a hospital, back home and then to another hospital by friends anxious to prevent his starving to death.

Today, officials at Beth Israel Hospital said, he wants more food than is good for him. His appetite, sharpened by the strike, was classed as "ravenous."

Kraus is eating three meals a day, hospital attaches said, and drinks milk between meals.

'FLOOD VICTIM' FOUND ALIVE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Vanishing from his Ohio home almost 20 years ago, Arthur Francis, 51, construction worker, has been found here, remarried and the father of eight children.

The wife he left in Newark, O., in 1913, also has remarried and now has two children by her second marriage. Francis learned when he wrote to his family from his sickbed.

Physicians today said Francis' condition is critical. He is suffering from bronchial ailments.

Francis vanished from Ohio during a flood at Newark in 1913 and he was believed to have perished in the flood. Two of his brothers in Newark wired they were leaving for Charlotte to see him.

2 'OLD LADIES' NET SUSPECT

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Frank Bialek was blithely walking down the street with his girl, out on a "date."

Their heads bowed, two aged women approached from the opposite direction, clinging to each other weakly.

Suddenly the two bent forms straightened up. From beneath their faded shawls they drew revolvers and commanded Bialek to "stick 'em up."

Thus was the alleged murderer of Policeman Patrick Madden captured. Bialek, police announced today, confessed he shot and killed Officer Madden November 22.

The two old women were none other than Policemen Joseph Purcell and Daniel Konkowski in disguise. They had donned the Mid-Victorian feminine costumes when they learned Bialek, an ex-convict, had an appointment with a girl. They ventured forth to the scene of the appointment to get their man.

The Burt Shoe Store is the first unit of Edison Brothers in Pittsburgh. It will specialize in a complete style range of women's shoes all at one low price. The store is the last of the company's 1932 broad expansion program.

All the features of the modern store have been embodied in the new establishment. The front outside will be brilliantly lighted. More than 75 sales people from Pittsburgh and vicinity have been engaged for the opening, and from these will be selected a normal operating force of 35 employes.

Elmer Ridgeway, a former Pittsburgher, will direct the new store. L. D. Everrett, district sales manager of the Edison Brothers Eastern sales division, is attending the opening, and Harry Edison, president, and Irving Edison, vice president, are expected here over the week-end.

TENANTS HURT IN EXPLOSION

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A fire department lieutenant and at least five tenants of a two-story building were injured in an explosion which rocked the building and then toppled it to the ground early today.

Fire followed, making attempts at rescue hazardous, and it was at first feared many had been trapped in the blazing ruins.

After a cursory investigation of the cause of the blast, officials said it probably was due to gas. Two walls were immediately shattered, the remaining two swaying before they toppled into the tangled wreckage.

The most seriously injured was Max Myrent, 45, who, hospital attaches said, received severe burns which might prove fatal.

Hyman Greenberg and his wife, Betty, threw their 9-months-old son, Morton, into a sheet held by two spectators. He was uninjured. They jumped from a sign and missed the sheet. Both were injured.

Policeman Battles Behind Snow Fort

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A Brooklyn policeman used a snow pile for a barricade today in a battle with five men, and then, in a commandeered taxicab, chased them two miles through Brooklyn streets, only to lose them.

Patrolman John S. Sheridan saw an automobile, for which he thought an alarm had been sent out, standing at the curb. When he started to cross the street, the men pulled rifles from under their overcoats and fired.

THIRD BROTHER SEEKS GOLD

TOWNSVILLE, Queensland.—(AP.)—Charles Schultz is leading an expedition from here in a search for gold which his two brothers found—one after the other—only to die before they could bring back the treasure.

Albert Schultz discovered a rich gold deposit near the South Australian border in 1925. On his way home he died after entrusting his story to a half-caste who brought the news to William Schultz.

William went to the spot, which is reported to be near Tanami, in Central Australia. He, too, found the gold—but was killed by a fall from his horse.

Now Charles hopes to secure the wealth. The aborigines in that region are stated to be unfriendly so the expedition will travel in armored trucks.

Too Many Working Wives Try to Do Too Much

Is it wrong for wives to work in these hard times?

Are they robbing someone else of bread and butter if they do?

Plenty of folks have written to this department to say "yes" to both of those questions. According to them, any Misses who hung onto the old pay check, when she had a Mister to support her, was seven different kinds of a demon.

But here's Claire, with a new angle on the old problem. Listen!

Dear Miss Robinson:

I have often wanted to write to your column, but never got around to it before. Now Laura's letter has brought up a situation so like mine that I want to tell what I did. Maybe my story will help other working wives.

She complained that her husband wouldn't help at home. Mine didn't like to either, but I found a solution—and to more than that particular problem, too, I think.

I worked in an office after we were married, and got home two hours before my husband, so I had plenty of time to rest and fix dinner. We both enjoyed our dinner, but he wanted me to always leave the dishes till morning, and spend the evening with him, even if it were just sitting in the living room.

Well, any woman knows what that would mean—in the morning. If I insisted on cleaning up, he would help, being careful to get most everything in the wrong stall, and then he'd pout the rest of the evening.

I found myself not making puddings or muffins, on account of the dishes it would make. I even went so far as to buy paper plates. It was a sore spot, I am telling you.

BIRED YOUNG GIRL

Then, coming home one evening, I walked behind two girls, one of whom lived in our block. She was 14. She had a younger brother, two younger sisters, a mother, father and spry old grandmother in the family. She was telling the other girl how she had to do all the work at home, and the younger ones wouldn't help, and how Grandmother bossed her. It was a lot of trouble—and then I got an idea.

That very evening I went down and made arrangements for this girl to come up just after breakfast and clean my kitchen. She loved my kitchen. I had colorful pots and dishes. And she was a worker. She followed my directions, fixed vegetables, and was thrilled when she could help with the dinner dessert.

She also discussed her problems with me—boys, kissing and what not. She thought her mother "old-fashioned," but took my advice. In fact, her mother told me she had completely changed in disposition.

EVERYBODY BENEFITED

Her mother's problem was solved. My problem was solved. The girl was benefited, and I felt that I was doing my bit to help, and helping to mold a character—a very elevating and worth-while feeling, besides the pleasure of having my dishes washed.

I am sure that any working wife could do as I did. There must be plenty of youngsters like that who would be glad of a lift, and there are plenty of people — older people — who would be glad of a job, too, and at not too high a wage.

Too many times working wives try to do too much, little realizing the good they could do by giving someone else a job —passing their chores around where others would benefit.

Plenty of women aren't really built for housework. They like working down town. Then let them give someone else the job of housekeeping. It will be a benefit all around. What do you think? CLAIRE.

What do I think? That you have a first class idea, Claire—an idea that many a weary Working Wife, and many a girl or woman who would like to work, could make good use of!

And how about you, sister? Are you dividing jobs, like Claire? If not, why not?

Fay King Suggests Practical Uses for Old Christmas Cards

By FAY KING

Do you save your Christmas cards?

Many persons do not, thinking of them only as greetings of the moment to be discarded after the holidays.

But many Christmas cards are really very fine little prints and real etchings. Had you purchased them in a frame in a picture department they would have cost quite a bit. Such are worth saving and framing.

Another excellent use for Christmas cards is to save them for bookmarks. They can be cut down to a smaller size, doing away with the verse page of them if they are thick. Your Christmas ribbons and bright linings of your Christmas card envelopes will all make you a wonderful supply of pretty bookmarks, and you'll never injure books turning down pages.

Lillian Thinks Note Contains Code She Has Forgotten

It did not take long, in so small and hospitable a village as Sackettsville, to secure a call from a kindly and capable-looking physician, who prescribed and administered a powerful sedative to Helena Brixton, so that within half an hour after his visit she had slipped into a profound sleep.

"Poor darling! At least she won't suffer for a few hours," Lillian said, when she came out from the bedroom, where she had been ministering to Helena. "Ronald, will you stay here in the suite until she awakens? I may be back by that time. I think the physician means her to sleep nearly all day. She didn't close her eyes last night."

I wanted to say, "Neither did you," but I kept back the comment, and Ronald gave his promise to stay with his mother, although I knew that every nerve in his body was clamoring for action in the search for his sister and Marion.

"One thing more. May we use your car, Ronald?"

"Need you ask?" the boy retorted quietly, and Lillian gave him an approving nod as she started for the door.

"Madge, I want to see you," she said. "Come over to my room. Mary, will you follow us in 10 minutes? Bring the key to Ronald's car with you."

Mary nodded, and I followed Lillian out into the hall and into her own room, where we found Harry and my father. She looked at their faces and then put her back against the door, almost as if she feared something alien would try to enter.

MAY BE CAMOUFLAGE

"Well," she said, "what's the verdict about Brixton?"

My father opened his hands, palms outward.

"Who can tell?" he said. "Everything now points to the complete alibi of both Brixton and Owen—"

"Except the size of the reward named," Harry Underwood put in, as my father paused and looked at him.

"You mean?" I queried.

"That it may be simply camouflage, and that the next demand will tell us that if we can't raise the hundred thousand to bring Marion's lock box instead," my father replied. "To be ready for that emergency, I think I ought to go to Sag Harbor, get the box and bring it here. I will take a bodyguard with me, and add a second when I get the box. The school safe will be secure enough for it, with the men we can put around the grounds on one pretext and another.

LILLIAN CONSENTS

"Mind you, it probably will not be needed. Brixton and Owen may not have a thing to do with this. But we must be prepared for anything. What do you say, Lillian? Do you authorize me to get it?"

"Do I authorize you?" Lillian choked. "It isn't like you to waste time asking. Anything you wish to do is all right with me. You know that."

"And with me," her big husband said, and my father's eyes glowed.

"Then," he said, "I shall start at once."

"And I'll get to a telephone and see how soon I can get in touch with Phil Veritzen and with Bennie Schwartzman for you, Lil," Harry Underwood said. "I'll be back shortly, dearest."

Even when we were alone together she vouchsafed no immediate explanation of her wish to see me alone. As soon as the men were out of the room she said tensely "Lock the door," and not waiting to see if her command was obeyed, she began to stride up and down the room, hands behind her back.

Finally she sank down in a chair, her elbows on her knees, her chin cupped in her palms.

When at last she jumped up and came over to me, holding the photographed letter before my eyes, I felt as if I were on the brink of some tremendous discovery.

"If only I could remember," she said, in a beaten voice. "Marion has concealed a code in this, and I can't remember the game we played."

Household Hints

Before polishing tinware, rub the metal with a slice of onion. This gives the tin a brilliant polish.

When the blankets are to be washed for the first time they should be soaked overnight in cold water and then rinsed. This is to remove the sulphur used in bleaching. After this they should be soused until clean in a lukewarm lather made with boiled soap and water, and then rinsed in clear water of the same temperature.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hurry and bustle, worry and emotional storms are the enemies of good looks. The wise woman takes out an insurance against the marks of time by giving each day a certain amount of time to work, rest, play, sleep and exercise. She who obeys the laws of health not only feels better and looks better, but qualifies herself to face life with courage. Her eye is bright, her step is brisk and her disposition never curdles.

Although certain glands are sometimes responsible for obesity, the common cause is the simple one of eating foods that produce fat cells. By cutting down of fats, starches and sweets, there will be no material for the building of adipose substance. Taboo groceries are potatoes, cream, cereals, pastries, fat meats, white bread. The diet should consist of fish, poultry, lean meats, one egg a day, green salads and vegetables that grow above ground. Take tea and coffee clear.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Telephone Amenity

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother's wife has been in the family for 20 years. Each time we telephone her she patronizingly says "Thank you for calling." As she has an inflated opinion that her college education makes her superior to us, I would like to know if this form is correct among members of one family, who telephone frequently to each other about nothing important?

If the use of that phrase is correct, I shall adopt it myself.

C.

I can't help feeling that you are wrong in your interpretation of this amenity that is shown you by your sister-in-law. This is always the polite and gracious thing to say to people who telephone to us. It isn't, naturally, exactly necessary to say this polite thing, but it is just one of those things that indicate that we are polite and appreciative, and that we don't mind saying that we are.

I can't really feel that this gracious thank-you was done in any spirit of being "patronizing." Don't you really feel that you might interpret it this way without her meaning it in this way at all?

This polite "Thank you for calling" is just as appropriate for expressing your appreciation to members of the family as it is for friends or acquaintances.

I'm very fond of this particular form of politeness, and I do hope that you change your mind about it, and adopt its graciousness for your telephoning.

Greeting Inappropriate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Three months ago my fiance passed away and I do not know the boys intimately who acted as pallbearers. Would it be proper form to send each a Christmas card? If so, how should the card be signed? J.

This wouldn't, I think, be a very appropriate gesture to make at this time. Since you don't know these boys well, they would, I believe, "wonder" at receiving such a greeting from you at such a time.

PAULIST CHOIR :-: Christmas Programs; Newspaper Drama :-: BROADCASTS

D. W. Griffith, Ben Williams On Air

The celebrated Paulist Choristers, internationally-known choir of boys and men recruited from the New York metropolitan district and trained under the direction of Father Finn, present a special Christmas program, replacing for tonight only the usual Wednesday night dramatization of the Adventures of Sherlock Holmes over NBC-KDKA at 9 o'clock.

Father Finn

The Choristers, who have appeared in Pittsburgh and other cities all over the world, sing regularly every Sunday in the Paulist Fathers' Church, New York. The choir was organized in 1904 and the singers undergo a strict training.

David Wark Griffith, famous motion picture director, is guest speaker on the Caravan dramatic program broadcast over KDKA today at 5:15. Mr. Griffith, appearing under the auspices of the Salvation Army, discusses that organization's "share the purchase" relief plan.

* * *

Program Pointers

Ben Ames Williams, popular author of stories of newspaper life, presents a special radio adaptation of "As a Man Speaketh," one of his most picturesque tales dealing with the Fourth Estate, as tonight's "Five Star Theater" feature, broadcast over NBC-KDKA at 7:30 p. m. "As a Man Speaketh" has for its central figure a swaggering ne'er-do-well who drifts from newspaper to newspaper and tells a different — and fanciful — story about his past in each new town. The author, a newspaperman for nearly a decade, makes a brief microphone talk prior to the dramatic presentation.

Mr. Williams

"Dead Men Tell Tales," Raoul Whitfield's detective story with a newspaper background about a reporter who is killed in a night club while following up a previous killing, is the "Crime Club" offering on WJAS at 9:30.

Three Christmas programs, broadcast from Kaufmann's store, are billed on WCAE today. "Ye Olde Town Crier" goes on the air at 4:30, followed at 8 by "Selections from Operettas" by the WCAE Mixed Quartet. Carols by the quartet are heard at 3:30.

Corn Cob Pipe Club Christmas festival, bringing memories of the old South, barn dances and yuletide songs, is listed on WCAE at 10.

Nino Martini, Italian lyric tenor, sings the popular musical setting to Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees," by Rasbach; "O Sole Mio" and two arias from Verdi's "La Traviata" with Howard Barlow's Orchestra tonight — WJAS at 11 o'clock.

Pirate Trades, Gruber Tribute On Seals' Bill

W. E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, is interviewed by Charles J. Doyle, Sun-Telegraph baseball expert, on the baseball meetings held in New York last week, as a highlight of the Trained Seals' program on WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

In addition, an eulogy to the late John Gruber, for 40 years official scorer of Pittsburgh games, who died Sunday night, by Sam Watters, secretary of the Pirates, is heard. Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor, is master of ceremonies.

Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews recent political developments during his weekly talk from the studios of WCAE at 6 p. m.

A speal program for the children is presented under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, on WCAE at 4:45 today.

Twin broadcasts of news over WCAE and WJAS by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are listed at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. today.

Lombardo Plays New Berlin Number

Guy Lombardo, leading his Royal Canadians' Orchestra, features the public debut of Irving Berlin's latest composition, "Playing With Fire," as a musical highlight of the Burns and Allen-Lombardo broadcast on WJAS tonight at 9 o'clock.

Listening In on Radioland Gossip

"Why I Can't Forget," a new fox trot by Herbert S. Baumgarten, Pittsburgh composer, will be introduced to radio listeners by Frederick G. Rodgers, baritone and program director of KDKA, during the "Strollers Matinee" broadcast Friday at 2:30 p. m. The song was chosen from hundreds of manuscripts sent to KDKA.

Mr. Baumgarten

Tess Gardella's "Aunt Jemima" contract has been extended for another 13 weeks . . . She's on the air each Tuesday and Thursday at 2 over CBS-WJAS.

Barbara Maurel contributes the following statistical evidence of a year's hard work: She has taken part in no less than 310 programs, 125 of them sponsored, and has sung 800 different selections, only 10 of which have been repeated.

The newest addition to Columbia's array of singers is Edna Rush, who broke into radio two months ago via WCAU in Philadelphia and made her CBS debut the other day. She won her first radio job after being named "Miss Television" in a Philadelphia contest.

Jack Smart, "March of Time" actor, had a stiff linguistic workout recently. In the course of a single day's broadcast, rehearsals and auditions, he played the parts of a Spaniard, a German, two Frenchmen, a Japanese, a Swede and a Chinese.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

It was an open season for turkey on the North Side yesterday. The residents there were all on the lookout for a 14-pound turk which escaped from a Chestnut street poultry dealer, who last saw him sailing 200 feet up over Ohio street. The lucky hunter can consider him a Christmas present from Globe Trotter W. O. Derda.

* * *

We do wish that we were Santa Claus so that we could comply with all the needs of those of you who have asked for aid. Your letters have had a sympathetic reception. But what can I do except in rare cases refer them to the various welfare agencies with a request for action?

* * *

Follow Margaret Evans' advice: "Do your New Year Resolution making early." Who has a few that won't break? What are they?

* * *

"So," wails H. B. Bay, of Pittsburgh, "You got us in a fine jam. Here we are in town and can't get back. Out of gas? No. Out of time."

That's his answer to the problem: "At what rate of speed must you return if you went to town at 15 miles per hour to average 30 miles per hour for the round trip?"

F. L. Koenig arrived at the same conclusion. It's four miles from McKees Rocks to Pittsburgh. At 15 m. p. h. it would take 16 minutes to get to town. The round trip is 8 miles and averaging 30 m. p. h. it would consume 16 minutes. But it has already taken that long to get to town so we'd have to make it back in nothing flat.

* * *

David, of Ambridge—Your answer of 782 m. p. h. was pretty fast, but not fast enough. The stock problem answer was okay.

A. J. Veraldi, North Side.—Glad you liked it. Sorry about the work and worry. Got into two arguments myself. Send me your brain tickler.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Faulty Posture One of the Causes of Backache

Dr. Copeland

"I suffer from sacro-iliac backache," somebody just wrote me. "Is there anything that I can do to relieve the pain."

I receive many letters like this. Some of these sufferers have not been to a physician but they clearly describe their symptoms.

Backache may be caused by various things, but among the most common and important causes is trouble in the "sacro-iliac articulation." These big words apply to the joint between the lowest portion of the spinal column and the hip bone.

This joint is easily dislocated, strained or injured. A fall, lifting a heavy object, a blow or a twist, may injure this sensitive articulation. Persons who are overweight and whose work demands continued standing, bending or sitting, are in danger of trouble in this joint.

Faulty posture, such as results from standing or sitting in a slouching position, leads to this ailment, with all its discomforts. If you have ever suffered from sacro-iliac backache you appreciate how annoying and painful this condition can be.

The severe pain may come entirely from the faulty posture. The victim may be amazed to find how quickly his discomfort disappears with correction of his bodily posture.

Rest is imperative in an acute attack of this disorder. Complete rest in bed will materially reduce the pain and shorten the duration of the attack.

For those who are unable to take advantage of this method of treatment, strapping of the back will help a lot. Strap with adhesize plaster, starting from the left hip and extending over to the opposite side. Then reverse the process, strapping from the right side. Continue until five or six layers of adhesive strapping overlap each other. In most instances pain is immediately relieved by the strapping.

The pain is due to a spasm of the muscles caused by sudden movements or muscular exertion. The adhesive strapping serves as a tight corset and restricts the movements of the muscles, easing the pain.

Of course this treatment is only a temporary measure. Since the dislocation or strain can be traced to a weakened joint it is necessary that the joint be strengthened. To this end, a supporting brace of some kind is needed. I would advise that you be measured for this brace by a specialist in this work. A poorly fitted brace is more harmful than no brace. A properly adjusted belt or other appliance does wonders.

Of course, backache pain may be wrongly attributed to sacro-iliac weakness. Not every ache in this region can be explained so easily. Certain other disturbances may have the same symptoms and mislead the sufferer. The underlying cause can be pretty accurately determined by an X-ray picture of the spine and hipbones.

Answers to Health Queries

Constant Reader. Q.—Can sinus trouble be cured?

A.—This condition requires treatment over a long period of time before it can be entirely cleared up.

M. G. W. Q.—What causes the ankles to crack when you get up to walk?

A.—Cracking joints are usually due to lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod liver oil before retiring.

E. R. Q.—What causes a dull pain on top of the head?

A.—This may be due to high blood pressure. Have your blood pressure tested, also have your eyes examined.

F. D. F. Q.—How can I gain weight?

A.—Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Exercise daily in the fresh air, practice deep breathing. Get regular hours of sleep. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Vienna Coup and a Slam

As I predicted some time ago, the greatly increased premiums for Grand Slams have resulted in an epidemic of Grand Slam bidding in all Bridge circles—clubs and homes. Now it is fully worthwhile to bid a Grand Slam, the success of which hinges upon a successful finesse or one of the variety of squeezes, which are part of the equipment of a good Bridge player.

Quite recently, at Crockford's Club, New York, where social leaders and Bridge experts gather in the afternoons and evenings for a rubber of Bridge, Mrs. T. Charles Farrelly and her partner, Mrs. Irene Haultain, reached a Grand Slam in the bidding of the hand below, and Mrs. Farrelly made it by means of a very fine squeeze, which had as one of its essential elements the rare and little-understood Vienna Coup.

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Mrs. Haultain
♠ A J 8
♡ A 6
◇ A K 9 2
♣ Q J 4 3

♠ Q 9 3 2 ♡ K 9 3 2 ◇ Q J 10 7 ♣ 8

North / West / East / South

♠ 10 7 ♡ J 10 8 5 4 ◇ 8 4 3 ♣ 7 5 2

♠ K 6 5 4 ♡ Q 7 ◇ 6 3 ♣ A K 10 9 6
Mrs. Farrelly

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣ (1)	Pass	7 ♣ (2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1. Little more than a minimum Opening bid. Mrs. Farrelly did not appreciate the dizzy heights which the bidding would soon reach.

2. Mrs. Haultain explained that she could not see how it would be possible for her partner to bid again, as, with her holding, the Opening Hand must be close to a minimum. Hence, the direct Slam bid, without passing it through the sieve of a Forcing Takeout.

The Opening lead was the diamond Queen, which was won with the Ace in Dummy. The adverse trumps were drawn, the third round being won in the closed hand. Then a small spade was led to the Knave in Dummy. When the finesse held, Mrs. Farrelly could see the possibility of making her contract if West had four diamonds and the King of hearts. Her next play was to lay down the Ace of hearts. She then followed with the Ace of spades and led the last spade from the Dummy. Now all the trumps were led. West could not defend the hand. The inexorable working of the principle of the squeeze, very finely executed by Mrs. Farrelly, resulted in the fulfillment of the contract.

This hand would not have been a good Grand Slam bid under the old laws of scoring, in effect until November 1. However, with an increase of the Slam bonus from 1000 to 1500 points, not vulnerable, the risk in bidding the Grand Slam was fully justified. The faultless play assured its fulfillment.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: What is the correct response to an Opening bid of two clubs on the following hand, no intervening bid:

♠ 7 ♡ K 6 ◇ A K 9 5 4 ♣ K 7 5 3 2

Answer: Two diamonds. The lower stages of bidding should be utilized to exchange a maximum of information, and the strength of the hand in support of clubs can be shown on a subsequent round. Of course, after partner's Opening two-bid in a suit, both parties are required to keep the bidding open until a game contract is reached.

SHORTAGE LAID TO DEAD BANKER

READING, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A shortage of $138,000 in the accounts of George T. Cobb, cashier of the Penn National Bank and Trust Company, found dead in his garage last week, was disclosed today by the bank's president, Joseph H. Hasbrouck.

The official said his former cashier had sold $150,000 of Liberty bonds and "that a considerable portion of the proceeds were employed and lost by him in stock exchange transactions."

Cobb, for whom a certificate of accidental death was issued last Friday, three days after the finding of his body next to his car in the partly closed garage, was 38. He had been cashier since 1925.

Finds Her Dress On Other Woman, Wife Charges

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Victor Perninich bought his wife a new dress. It was an exclusive model, and she liked it for that reason.

Then one fine day, she charged in a bill for divorce, she saw another woman wearing a dress exactly like her own.

Hurrying home she found her dress was missing and obtained from her husband a confession, she alleged, that he had "loaned" the garment to the other woman.

Mrs. Perninich asks for alimony.

WIFE HERE ASKS MAN BE FREED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 21.—Seven years of exemplary life while a fugitive from Rockview Penitentiary, was the basis of an appeal for a pardon today by F. L. Carson, now serving a term for escaping.

Mrs. Eva Colegrove, of Pittsburgh, who married Carson, under the name of Colegrove after he escaped from the prison, added her plea. She said she had come here from a hospital to plead for her husband's release so that he can provide for her and two children. She said both children are ill.

Mrs. Colegrove said she did not know her husband was a fugitive until just before his arrest.

NITTI PALS OUT FOR REVENGE

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Frank (The Enforcer) Nitti's gangland followers are out to avenge the shooting of their chieftain.

They have threatened reprisals, it was revealed today, when it became known a police guard had been posted at the home of Detective Sergt. Harry Lang, who felled the dreaded "Enforcer" with four bullets from his revolver.

The guard was stationed at Sergt. Lang's house when the officer's wife reported she had been threatened with death in anonymous telephone calls. Mrs. Lang also said someone on the telephone threatened to kidnap her 15-year-old son, Sidney.

MOTHER PLEADS FOR SLAYER

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The mother of Guy Davin, the young Frenchman who is on trial for the murder of Richard Wall, an American, appealed to the jury for mercy today, saying her son was irresponsible.

Davin's wife said that on the night of the Wall killing last December her husband gave her 4,000 francs, saying:

"Here's something to eat with. It's the result of my work."

Davin's trial started yesterday. Police said they had obtained from him a confession that he killed Wall, a former resident of New York, and robbed him of $300. Wall's body was found in the Seine.

17 Japanese Slain In Bandit Battle

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Seventeen Japanese are dead, two are missing and four lie seriously wounded today after a battle with Chinese forces 30 miles east of Tashiahkiao, a Mukden-Dairen Railway station about 100 miles southwest of here.

A Japanese platoon of 40 soldiers was surrounded two days by greatly superior Chinese guerilla forces until the survivors cut their way to safety, Japanese military reports said.

'GOLD' SUSPECT ADMITS PAROLE

Richard A. Hartwell, 35, who has maintained he can cause gold and platinum to expand, admitted a few things in his cell at Central Police Station today, Inspector Frank R. Boyd reported.

Between tears, Hartwell said that his real name was William G. Schnall, that he had a wife and two children on the coast, that he was under parole in Los Angeles for a forgery conviction and that he is drawing a government pension for injuries suffered in the Navy, according to Boyd.

Hartwell was arrested by skeptical detectives after he had complained that $1,300 in gold and platinum was stolen from his room in the Argonne Hotel. He had letters from government officials whom he had tried unsuccessfully to interest in his "secret" chemical process, sleuths said.

Violator of Parole Gets 2-Month Term

In jail he had written an obscene letter to a North Side woman, it was said.

County Gets Extra Bridge Job Bill

The Harrison Construction Company has sent a bill to the County Commissioners for extras amounting to $1,380.83, in connection with its contract for the paving of the West End-North Side Bridge and the north approach to the span.

NEW ORIGINAL CIPHER

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Cipher No. 29 is an original submitted by Frederick Wilson, of Massillon, O. It's a fractional substitute-transposition cipher and should keep you fans guessing.

How do you like original ciphers? Are they hard enough for you? Write and let the Cipher Editor know.

See if you can stump your Cipher Editor.

Did you solve Cipher No. 28? It was sorta hard, wasn't it?

The new one today will let you relax a bit. But look out for No. 30. (Take note, Mr. George R. Lang).

In deciding yesterday's cipher the key word was WASHINGTON, and the letters numbered according to sequence of appearance in the ordinary alphabet.

The successful decoder wrote the code horizontally in a rectangle, 10 letters wide, then transposed the column in order from left to right, placing the first under the first letter of the alphabet appearing in the key word, or "a," the second under the second letter in the alphabet appearing in the key word, or "g," and so on.

The letters ETAIONS appeared only to fill out the rectangle and are nulls. If this had not been done it would have proved much more difficult to determine that this was a rectangular cipher. As it is the message contained 130 letters and you probably jumped at the most natural factors from the very start.

Depression Measures Bar 500,000 Aliens

DENIES STATUE SMUGGLING

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—A Greek Apollo-like statue, worth $900,000 in normal times and $300,000 at present depression prices, today became the bone of contention between the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a prominent art professor of the University of Athens when officials of the museum denied the statue had been smuggled out of Athens last May.

Prof. Apostolos Arvanitoppoulos, of the University of Athens, contends the archaic work of art, nearly 2,000 years old, is the most valuable piece of art smuggled from Greece in recent times.

Informed of his charges today, William Sloan Coffin, president of the Metropolitan Museum, retorted:

"We were offered the statue from a legitimate dealer whom we've known for a number of years. And what's more, we paid a legitimate price for the statue."

RAIL PAY MOVE UP TO UNIONS

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Representatives of railway labor today found themselves confronted with the problem of attempting to break the deadlock that has existed between them and railroad managers in their conference over wages.

Informed last night that the carriers were withdrawing their offer to continue for six months the present "temporary" 10 per cent reduction of basic wages, the 1,500 union representatives were faced with the burden of saving the conference.

They have held out for a year's continuance of the reduction after its expiration January 31, with the provision that wages return to the basic scale then. In that is the point of disagreement. The managers are asking the right to place the problem of wages up to arbitration under the railway labor act.

Just what labor would do remained uncertain as leaders planned a conference to draft a reply today.

Cutting Speaker's Power Opposed By Regulars

By MARK SHIELDS

Proposal, emanating from a group of anti-organization Republicans, that in the next Legislature the Speaker be stripped of power, and that committees be named by a committee on committees, chosen by the House membership, is only in the tentative stage. It may be entirely abandoned unless more support for the suggestion can be found.

Mr. Shields

There is a precedent, the same thing having occurred in the 1913 session after something of a political revolution in the state following the Bull Moose campaign. But the situation in 1933 will be slightly different, and organization leaders believe they will be able to muster sufficient votes to prevent any successful combination of "independent" Republicans and Democrats next month.

* * *

Might Be Gain—But Perhaps Chaos

Some of the men who might be loosely classed as anti-organization have received overtures from regular leaders, and have proven receptive. Some of them already have committee chairmanships, and have promises that they will not be molested. Others have been given assurances of sympathetic treatment.

A committee on committees would be elected from the House membership, probably three or five from the regulars, independents and Democrats. Then this group would select the committees. Perhaps there would be a gain for the citizenry generally through this system. And perhaps not, for there would be chaos, there would be trading and swapping beyond normal. For on organization of the Legislature there is little reason to believe that the Democrats favor one group of Republicans more than another.

* * *

Leaders Claim Democrat Aid in Deadlock Threat

Republican leaders claimed to have pledges from 15 Democrats to vote with the organization on the speakership had a deadlock threatened there, a possibility erased by the decision of Gov. Pinchot not to enter a candidate against Representative Talbot, of Delaware County.

There is also some speculation as to how avidly Mr. Pinchot would co-operate in the suggestion to deprive the Speaker of traditional authority. If that should come about, and if the House committees bore a Pinchot stamp, there would be a situation resembling that of 1931, when Pinchot controlled the House and the regulars the Senate.

There was a serious division of responsibility, and in the resulting clash not only did some good legislation—including revision of the utility law—fall into the discard, but that very division of responsibility made it impossible for Mr. Pinchot with validity to charge the organization with all the failures of the session.

* * *

Pinning Blame Will Be Useful to Pinchot

If the organization is in control of both Senate and House, and if it then does not respond to legitimate and imperative demands for legislative relief on a number of subjects, the blame can easily be pinned. And that pinning will be useful to Mr. Pinchot in any further political argosies.

The further suggestion that all bills introduced should be reported from committee, either with a favorable or unfavorable recommendation, and acted upon by the whole House, is ridiculous to any one who has followed legislative practice. There would be chaos, delays could become interminable, and the session would string out beyond all reason.

What might be done is to change the rule now in force to require 105 votes, or a majority of the House, to discharge a committee from consideration of a bill and bring it to the floor. The old rule required only 65 members. Often the additional 40 might be gathered up through open debate, but few bills could be passed which lacked this original nucleus.

Coyne Joins Kline in Denying Part in Ouster

Senator James J. Coyne has joined Mayor Kline in denying any part in the effort to compel Senator William D. Mansfield to resign either from the State Senate or the County Board of Commissioners on the charge that his dual office-holding is illegal. Coyne says he knows only one of the principals in the case in addition to Mansfield, and that one only slightly.

If there should be any eventual foundation for one scrap of political gossip, Coyne well might be glad to see Mansfield's position upheld. This gossip has reported that when Councilman M. J. Muldowney, a Coyne follower, resigns to take his seat in Congress, Coyne might like to be named to the councilmanic vacancy—and at the same time hold his Senate place.

Apparently his position would be on all fours with that now confronting Mansfield.

Certainly Coyne will try to have one of his own people named to follow Muldowney in Council—even though the appointment may be only from spring to the first of 1934—and there is no one on whom one can depend to do a job satisfactorily as well as one's self.

Who Wants a Baby for Christmas? Here Are Five Santa Might Bring for Adoption

FIVE OF THIRTY HOMELESS LITTLE BABIES AT ROSELIA MATERNITY HOSPITAL WAITING FOR SOMEONE TO ADOPT THEM IN TIME FOR XMAS . . . 1932 HAS BROUGHT MORE ADOPTIONS

THREE HOUSES WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

2,000 Autos in Jam For Hour as Debris Litters Street

The explosion that ripped three frame houses at 1041-43-45 East Ohio street, Shaler Township, and sent five persons to the Allegheny General Hospital, was due to dynamite or nitroglycerin, and not gas, Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr announced today. Pfarr said:

"It was not gas, but dynamite or nitroglycerin. I have several persons under surveillance."

Pfarr said he had ordered the ruins of the buildings damaged late yesterday torn down as a safety measure.

Those in the hospital are Mrs. Emily Stefanick, 54, of 1045 East Ohio street; her son, Joseph Stefanick, 24; Mrs. Mary Zupanic, 22, of 1045 East Ohio street; her husband, John Zupanic, 26, and Mary Dockman, 16, 979 East Ohio street.

GIVEN FIRST AID

Two others, injured slightly, were given first aid at the scene. They were Thelma Pavlick, 13, of 1057 East Ohio street, who leaped from a second story window of the Stefanick home when the blast occurred, and Joseph Marshall, 52, of 1041 East Ohio street, caught under falling debris.

Mrs. Nellie Kasel, 20, an expectant mother, whose home at 1029 East Ohio street was damaged slightly, was taken to Passavant Hospital today.

From his hospital cot, Zupancic told relatives the explosion occurred when he struck a match in the cellar of his home. The occupants, hurled through floors and buried by the wreckage, were extricated by firemen and neighbors. Bits of furniture and the splintered wall and roof of the structure were blown into the street and onto the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Police estimated that more than 2,000 automobiles and trucks were held up during the hour required to clear the debris from the street.

TELLS OF LEAP

Thelma Pavlick, who leaped from the second-floor window of the Stefanick home, said:

"I was in the kitchen when the ceiling began to fall. A half dozen boards fell about me. I couldn't get out the door, so I jumped from the window."

Although Zupancic and his wife, the latter ill in bed, were injured, their two children, Mary Jane, 4, and John Jr., 2, apparently were none the worse for their experience.

Fire Chief Fred C. Mehringer, of the Cherry City Volunteers Fire Company, estimated the damage at $12,000.

Fido Lawmakers Are Whistling Loud Swan Songs

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

What's wrong with legislation? It's the Fido legislators with their pet bills.

Every one has a personal obsession he wants to make unanimous. The Fido lawmaker is against everything but his own lap dog.

He voted against the sales tax, repeal and the beer bill. That's because the people want them. In a way he is right. He figures:

"The people wanted me once. So they can be wrong again."

His main object is to deepen his home town harbor so the children can wade in it.

He votes against everything else. He has a one-track mind with no road bed and a rail with no roadbed and a rail missing.

A lot of the Fido boys get through this session. In March we will have a President who agrees with the Senate and a House that agree with both.

That's removing two sharp edges from a three-cornered fight.

OHIO ANTI-RED LAW UPHELD

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Constitutionality of Ohio's criminal syndicalism act today was upheld by the state Supreme Court.

The decision was handed down in the case of Paul F. Kassay, of Akron, and was based on a bill of exceptions against the decision of Judge Walter B. Wannamaker in Common Pleas Court at Akron, holding the criminal syndicalism act unconstitutional and dismissing the case against Kassay.

The indictment against Kassay was based upon the allegation that while employed as a metal worker on the construction of the U. S. Navy dirigible, Akron, Kassay declared he would "spit" upon some rivets so that they would not hold firm in the dirigible's framework and that eventually the dirigible would collapse.

Kassay is now reported to be in Europe. Unless he is re-indicted, no further action can be taken against him.

Dull Times Produce Homes for More Waifs

Pleasure Funds Cut, Happiness Sought In Children

Wanted for Christmas: Permanent homes by 30 pretty babies at Roselia Maternity Hospital, 1612 Cliff street.

Hundreds of childless couples who would like to awaken Christmas morning and find a baby in the fireside stocking would do well to consider the children, ranging from newborn to three years of age, available for permanent adoption at Roselia.

Although applications for adoption of babies are fewer this Christmas than last, on the whole more permanent adoptions have been made during the last year and a half than in the preceding five years, according to Sister De Paul, superintendent of the hospital.

"I believe there is a definite trend toward home life. In the last two years, people have grown weary of pleasure or are financially unable to 'gad about' so much. A home is not complete without children. Hence the increased number of adoptions."

Sister De Paul does not approve of letting the children go out of the institution just for Christmas Day. Often they return with colds from unaccustomed temperatures and with stomachs upset from unwise combinations of food, she said.

DOCTOR TARGET IN BOMBING

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Police were on the lookout today for the person who placed a dynamite charge which last night wrecked the office of Dr. E. J. Stahl and damaged two downtown buildings.

An incoherent note found near the building in which Stahl had his office led police to believe the explosive had been placed by someone with a fancied grievance.

It was headed "Socialize the Medical Profession" and said the writer had "just got to do something" because "quak doctors did me awful dirty." It was signed "I am a Charleston High School Boy 17 Years Old."

The fact that a patient was late probably saved Stahl's life. He was in an outer office waiting for the patient when the blast demolished his operating room.

PA. DELEGATES OUST M'FADDEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Republican House delegation today voted to oust Representative McFadden as secretary of the delegation because of his attacks on President Hoover.

The immediate cause of the action was McFadden's recent unsuccessful attempt for impeachment of the President, after which the delegation met and requested his resignation as secretary. McFadden failed to comply, so today's recourse was undertaken.

Long a foe of Mr. Hoover, the Pennsylvanian lost his impeachment attempt in the House by 361 to 8 votes. He had charged the President with several sorts of high crimes and misdemeanors, concentrating especially on the moratorium and handling of the war debts problem.

The delegation elected Representative J. Howard Swick, of Beaver Falls, to succeed McFadden.

Bituminous Mining Employment Gains

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A decrease of one per cent in employment and 3.1 in payrolls in November as compared with October was reported today by the Labor Department.

Two of the 17 major industrial groups — metalliferous and bituminous mining—reported increases in both employment and payrolls for the month.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

"Technocracy." Is it a new mouth wash, a corn plaster, or has the scientists just hired a press agent? It says you only work four hours a day, and there will be no politicians. That last is the best selling clause it has. There is not a man in the country that can't make a living for himself and family. But he can't make a living for them, and his government too, the way his government is living. What the government has got to do is live as cheap as the people, then you don't need "Technocracy." Yours, WILL.

4 BANDITS GET LIFE IN KILLING

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Four young bandits, who last week killed one man and wounded four others with their wanton gunfire in a crowded St. Clair shores "blind pig," pleaded guilty to first degree murder in Macomb County Circuit Court yesterday.

Life imprisonment is mandatory.

The gunmen were Sam Lieb, 26; Alvin Rebeck, 25; Leslie Mauer, 24, and Archie Burd, 23. Their unprovoked gunfire killed William Marshall, milkman, and wounded three customers and the woman proprietor of the pig.

Lieb, Rebeck and Mauer also have admitted more than 30 holdups in Detroit. All four were to be returned to Detroit for possible identification by other holdup victims.

'Plot' Kept Secret from Harvard Actors

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The plot must be thick at Harvard—or so Robert G. Noyes, head tutor at Dunster House, feels.

He is drilling students in a musical comedy, but refuses to disclose details. He said:

"It would not be fair to my actors to tell the plot. If the audience were to know it they'd know more than the actors."

THEATER RITES FOR STAGE VET

TOWANDA, Pa., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Vizards are off in life's masquerade for Fred Geiger, veteran entertainer, but the show must go on, so his funeral service was conducted in a theater today before the matinee.

Connected with the show business almost from childhood, Geiger traveled the breadth of the land with stock companies, carnivals and, for a time, with the Barnum & Bailey circus.

Suffering a heart attack while donning the bright colored coat he wore as doorman at the Keystone Theater in recent years, Geiger's body was found—one arm in the sleeve of his costume.

Ushers at the theater acted as palbearers while the movie organist played the rollocking tunes the aged showman loved and a ministed pronounced the prayers.

About 30 veterans, some with families, have been living here after being ordered out of their camp at Uniontown.

Five Accused of Plot In January Fire

Five persons were held in the county jail today in connection with a fire of allegedly incendiary origin that destroyed the home of Mrs. Helen M. White, in Millock lane, Brackenridge, last January.

Investigation of the blaze, brought to the attention of Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr only last Monday, resulted in the arrest of Mrs. While, her husband, Joseph C. While, 35, of R. D. No. 7, Greensburg; Floyd H. Spence, 40, of 1024 Sterns street, Brackenridge; William E. Chahoc, of Brackenridge, and George While, 30, of Brackenridge, a brother of Joseph C. While.

The Whiles were said to have received insurance payments on the house and the contents.

The five, who waived hearings yesterday before Justice of the Peace W. R. Bew, of Brackenridge, signed statements in which they admitted their guilt, Pfarr said. State police and police from Tarentum and Brackenridge assisted Pfarr in the case.

Commissioners Split On Toll Bridge Plan

Mansfield Opposes Levies on Present Structures

Two bills, one providing for tolls on proposed county bridges, the other for tolls on spans already erected, are being drawn by county solicitors for presentation to the Legislature next month. The separate bills were ordered drawn after the County Commissioners split on the question of charging for crossing present bridges, to pay off indebtedness.

All three commissioners favor the first bill, which would authorize them to make the proposed Homestead high level and the Highland Park bridges toll spans. It would enable them to borrow construction funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as toll bridges are classed as self-liquidating projects.

MANSFIELD UNWILLING

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield opposed putting tolls on spans now erected, but on which there remains indebtedness. He said:

"I am against this proposal for two reasons. First, when the people voted for these bridges they knew they were to be free. If they thought they were to be toll spans they probably would not have voted for them.

"Second. I have no way of being certain that the future boards of commissioners will be made up of men as honest and careful as my two associates. I would not object to the additional revenue, but I would like to be sure it would not be wasted."

Commissioner C. M. Barr said he was in favor of legislation permitting tolls on future and present plans. He suggested provisions to limit use of the revenue to paying building costs and maintenance.

WOULD LIMIT SCOPE

Chairman C. C. McGovern said he wanted the bills to apply only to second-class counties, avoiding opposition from smaller counties. He said most of the bridges are new, but if they were old, maintenance costs would make tolls an immediate necessity.

He said:

"There has been a great change in transportation systems. Hundreds of outlaw buses come here from other states daily without paying taxes to help keep up the highways. The automobile traffic is eliminating from business small railroads that have their own spans.

"I would favor letting private interests put up spans and collect toll on the basis of a fair return. Banks or insurance companies might believe this a good investment."

Barr suggested that Mansfield introduce in the State Senate a bill authorizing the levying of tolls on present bridges. Mansfield replied he would be glad to introduce a bill bearing on future spans, but not one for tolls on those already built. He said:

"I don't like the principal of the second proposal."

HOLIDAY RUSH BOOMS SALES AT STORES

The Christmas spirit is just as strong as ever, and the shoppers are getting more for their money than they have in many a Christmas, reports of department store officials revealed today.

Officials of leading stores said conditions are gratifying, although the volume of business in dollars and cents has been lower because of the sharp decrease in merchandise prices.

One official remarked gold and old currency are finding their way into circulation, indicating hoarders are taking cash from hiding places. Another pointed out shoppers are selecting practical gifts.

The final week's rush to shopping centers was hailed by one store official as an indication that "Santa Claus is not dead," and others, commenting on the rising tide of business, said the number of transactions is as large, if not larger, than in previous years.

Announcement was made of the following closing hours for the remainder of the week:

FOOD 'TICKETS' AID NEEDY

These are busy days around old St. Patrick's where hundreds of needy men and destitute families apply every day for food, clothing and shelter. Father Cox says, while the need is more urgent than ever, he is in fairly good shape to take care of several hundred Christmas baskets.

This was made possible by the liberal donations from the Warner Theater benefit a week ago Sunday, when thousands attended the show, drawn by the announcements in the Sun-Telegraph.

Father Cox is getting a lot of Christmas cards in the shape of Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. Many of his friends and supporters are employing the blank on this page for this purpose. Each of these subscriptions bring to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Newspaperman About Town

Neal Andrews, ex-groom of Dorothy Hall, and Josephine Dunn of "Take a Chance" are taking too many . . . Eugene Greenhut, son of the famous department store builder, and Rochelle Seabury are rehearsing the Mendelssohn March . . . Chas. S. Hand, ex-sec'y to Jimmy Walker, spurned the post of Comm. of Corrections—and now Tammany is trying to get it for ex-Sheriff Tom Farley, who was jerked out of office by Gov. Roosevelt last spring . . . Those famous Sir Walter Scott manuscripts borrowed from the Morgan libree and thefted from Columbia University have been secretly returned.

Lou Tellegen, the eternal juvenile, has finally given up—and is learning how to play character parts. A radio hit, though; watch and see! . . . The 1932 All-America Board gave A-A rating to Jack Roberts, fullback of U. of Georgia, who played last in 1931. What kind of system is those!?! . . . Marcelle Edwardes, last in "Vanities," and Trommer, the large man, ought to be repealed! . . . The Gilbert Kahn-Sara Jane cooing is cooling . . . Christine Maple, who was imported from H'wood in 1929 by Ziegfeld for his "Whoopee," is returning to the Coast as a dressmaker . . . Par'm me—costume designer, as they are now so-called . . . Henrietta Kay, last in "Chrysalis," who wants her friends to think she is secretly merged to Albert Johnson, the scenic genius (she won't deny it), is wearing a Hindu wedding ring "made from an elephant's eyelash."

It's a boy over at the Edwin Miles Adams of the N. Y. Central's Pullman Dep't . . . Fred Astaire bought an "engagement ring" last week . . . For Phyllis Potter? . . . Or a "Gay Divorcee?" . . . The B. B. Hofstadters (brother of the Supreme Court Justice-elect) are blessed-eventing . . . Yacht Club anchorage on his Cypress with several boys and girlies for Havana doings . . . Edna Ferber is financially responsible for "Dinner at 8."

This column knows a press agent who knows an embassy attache in Washington who can arrange a decoration from most South American countries for $1,000 . . . Heheheh, for $200 more he can get a republic! . . . No kiddin'! . . . We are merely reporting the "racket"—don't bother us, please, to promote it for you . . . J. Haymes of the Nut Club and Joan Patton are tee-hee . . . A radio tube which will change direct current to alternating current and vice versa will be marketed early in the new year . . . Some believe that Doris Duke, the richest girl in the world, and one of the Baruchs are secretly bethrottled . . . If it is Sailing Baruch, we don't believe it . . . Have a chuckle at the Wales law, which censors naughty shows . . . They closed "The Captive" and let "Great Magoo" drown in its own mud.

An orchid to Arnold Johnson, who buys paintings from unknown artists, and lets them exhibit their work in his home, where he invites Biggies to view them . . . An orchid to Dr. Moress of the Park Central, who found Evelyn Crowell's purse in a cab and turned it over to a cabbie, whose name I'm sorry they didn't tell me, who in turn turned it over to Evelyn (Mrs. L. Fay).

It will cost NBC two million smackers just to move to Radio City—five blocks . . . Is Anne Kresge of that famous chain-store tribe a mannikin in a Detroit shop? . . . Whatever became of the Gilda Gray-Art Jarrett merger? . . . Naughty space thieves! . . . Dorothy Dell lost a job in a Detroit night club—after trying to replace the manager's girl in his heart . . . Florentine Gosnova, the ballerina, is back in circulation after a long romance. And richer!

Girls with brown eyes have a new gag to drive you crazier. They use blue mascara on their orb lashes. It gives the Garbo eye droop . . . Such goings on! . . . Bob Walton, who "cashed in" last week down at that L. I. place, was the lad who introduced the finger lingo to the Curb Market when the Curb was outdoors on Broad St. . . . Jimmy Cagney's manager, George Franks, and pretty Barbara Sheldon are closer to the altar than she will confess . . . J. J. Shubert's son, Johnny, a Harvard law student, and Barbara ("Walk a Little Faster") Williams are Western Union'd—which, of course, isn't illegal . . . Joe Zilch, the juggler, who throws cork balls from the stage to the balcony, has had to cancel his bookings—because business is so bad nowadays there is no one up in the balcony to return them!

Mistinguett, the French star, has aired her Leslie—who is marrying a chorine, decades younger . . . Her holiday cards with the ciggie she represents on them were designed by La Etting . . . Irene (Ex-Mrs. Cliff) Edwards and Howard Strickland of MGM have severed their Divine Understanding . . . When Nancy Carroll gambols around Hollywood late spots—husband Bolton Mallory remains home with his books because the cinema crowd distresses him . . . Is there a doctor in the house? . . . The very oddinary McIntyre remarks that Beatrice Lillie's comedy eludes him. Poor feller . . . Orchids for Ray Bolger, who was urged to fill the gap in "Varieties" when Donatello was stricken down with flu . . . MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

CARNEGIE MUSIC HALL

The Mendelssohn Choir, Ernest Lunt directing, gave its annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" last night in Carnegie Music Hall. The choir gave its traditional reading of all those magnificent choruses, rising to majestic heights in the great Hallelujah and the final Amen.

Mr. Lissfelt

Harold Haugh assumed the tenor part as he did last year, but seems to have gained more in repose since that performance. He is a very sincere musician, has a fine and well-schooled voice, and the intensity of his interpretation was rather moving. Olive June Lacy, soprano, is a newcomer. Her voice is beautifully lyric in quality, has greater possibilities than she now shows in her singing, but Miss Lacy has not yet acquired the more formal outlook upon oratorio.

On the other hand, Alta Schultz, contralto, is likely to create too sombre an atmosphere about her lovely voice and solo work. She, too, has gained much in repose in later years and satisfies with her musical approach to those lovely Handel airs. Herbert Gould, basso, is known in Pittsburgh for his virile and resonant voice as well as his staunch adherence to style. His florid singing is somewhat cloudy and might improve with accents. Earl Mitchell played organ accompaniment.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

McCrea Is Out Of Bennett Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—A new regime may be forming at RKO, but the studio preserves at least an outward appearance of calm. Though expecting momentarily to hear of the board's action on his resignation, David Selznick put in a busy day signing actors and completing plans for early productions.

Casting problem number one was to find an actor to replace Joel McCrea in the Constance Bennett picture. This the studio head disposed of by okaying a deal to borrow Charles Starrett from Paramount for the part.

Miss Chandler

Problem number two was to round out the cast of "The Great Desire," so this company could get under way upon the arrival of Colin Clive from London. To this end, Selznick ordered the signing of Helen Chandler (do you remember her as the wistful heroine of "Outward Bound?") for one of the important feminine parts.

Presumably, the RKO situation will be cleared up when B. B. Kahane arrives here from the East. Meanwhile, behind their poker faces, the staff of the great film plant is wondering what kind of a Christmas it's going to be.

* * *

In an effort to placate Ernest Hemingway, Paramount has airmailed a print of "Farewell to Arms" to the author in Piggott, Ark. Needless to say, the print carried the unhappy ending to the picture. Several days ago, when the studio first offered to send the print, Hemingway told them what they could do with it.

Patricia Farley Gets Role in Smith Film

Red-haired Patricia Farley, recently signed to a contract by Paramount when she reduced her weight 15 pounds in 30 days, has been assigned to a role with Kate Smith in "Hello, Everybody!" Miss Smith, unlike Miss Farley, is not trying to lose any of her 212 pounds for the sake of a picture career. Her public probably would be disappointed if she appeared upon the screen minus any of her weight.

GLORIA SHEA, FIRST NATIONAL PLAYER, TREATS THE VISITING FIREMEN WITH HER BEST SMILE

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA.—Sorry for my column yesterday, and I'm apologizing for it right here and now. Guess I went a trifle off the handle for the moment, but I really couldn't help myself. Sometimes, in this silly business of mine, you actually write the things that are in your mind. And, as in all businesses, people think you are a trifle daffy when you don't attempt to color the truth with a few lies.

I feel a little better now, however, and I promise not to be quite so truthful. I'll bet the other Broadway Columnists in New York are sore as the devil at me. Imagine a member of the Broadway union turning out a month's columns without so much as a single mention of Ben Bernie, Texas Guinan, the Broadway speculators, Greta Garbo, Earl Carroll, the farmer's daughter, or the mole on Paul Gallico's knee!

But what the devil. Here I am, fellers, and what am I going to do about it?

Tell you what I'll do, though. I'll make up for all my digressions in a very short time. I'm going to do one piece about the janes of Tunis, another that will include a tin-type of a famous camel, another that will have to do with the Elmer Letermans and the Granlunds of North Africa, and a long column that will tell why Mussolini is that way about Mussolini.

Honestly, boys, I don't mean to be untrue to all our policies and by-laws. If they happen to fire one of us Broadway boys, there may be 500 of us out of jobs. And nobody knows it better than I do. I haven't gone completely haywire at this writing. Take my word for it, fellers, I'll not throw you down. It's only a question of time until I return to normalcy.

After all, I hope I'm still in good standing as a member of the Broadway columnists' union. Imagine how I'd feel if I returned to New York and learned that I'd been fired from the Broadway union!

I couldn't stand it, boys. Please keep me in the union and I promise to play ball as soon as I feel better. If you threw me out, I might go into some legitimate business and make a fortune.

And you wouldn't have me that unhappy, would you?

I'm still in bed, but I know that I'll be okay tomorrow. As a matter of fact, and it's sort of a silly thing to write, I'm typing this column while I'm propped up with pillows and the typewriter hesitates between one knee and the other.

Mr. Ray Cozine, my director, and Signor Romognoli, my cameraman, are still off somewhere in the desert. They should be back late tonight, and I'm looking forward to seeing them. I miss them both, even though Signor Romognoli never says anything but: "How!" and Mr. Cozine is forever leaping in and out of a bathtub.

I've become attached to Ray Cozine. Very much so. Not only is he one of America's greatest film experts, but he is human and honest and real. Still more, he has the patience to sit and listen as I read him the columns I have written. That's the greatest test of a true friendship.

I've had several visitors today. The waiter brought me some eggs that I did not want. The valet brought me an extra blanket that I didn't need. The chambermaid brought me some pills that I didn't take. And the manager came in and spoke in a language that I didn't understand. It was all very thrilling.

I did get one swell kick, though, and since it will help me to finish this column, I suppose I should be mighty thankful. The kick came from Brahim, my Arab guide.

Brahim dropped in shortly after noon. He looked very sad, but I imagine it was less because I was ill than the fact that he was losing a day's pay.

We talked of this and that, and the conversation became so friendly that I was almost tempted to read a column to him. But I thought better of it. After all, it would be better if we remained friends.

After Brahim had enjoyed three drinks of brandy, our little talk became quite personal. He asked me many questions about America, and about my trip.

"Nothing much to it, Abe," I assured him nonchalantly. "Just taking 10 months out of my customary life and trying to study people, conditions and the Broadways of the world. Then I write articles about the things I see. Get the idea?"

"Quite," he replied. "And yet, the entire thought is not as clear as it might be. Would you mind, gentleman, explain just a little more thoroughly what you write about people? And how you find those people?"

I nodded happily. Here was a Broadway columnist getting a grand opportunity to talk about himself—and actually having a listener who didn't mind in the least. What a break!

"It's very simple, Abe," I asserted. "I just look around me and there I am. You mustn't forget that Tunis is like another world to me. Everything I see and everyone I meet are new in my eyes.

"Take yourself, for example. You are swell material for me. Our lives are so different. I'm an American; you're an Arab. Our clothes are different, our ideas are different—and everything about us is different. What you say might not interest another Arab, but it does interest me. And by the same token, it might interest my readers. Do you follow me?"

He nodded again.

"The gentleman makes it most clear," he returned. "But tell me more about me. How have you judged my mind?"

I smiled.

"About you," I returned affably, "I couldn't go wrong. You are wrapped up in your people. You have no desire to travel as I am doing. You are contented with your lot. You regard all American tourists as so many saps, and you treat them accordingly. By so doing, you make money.

"Let me ask you one little question, and I'll show you exactly what I mean. Don't think too long. Answer rapidly. And from your answer I'll show you why you and I are of different worlds.

"Ready? Okay. Fast, now. What's the one thing you want most of all right now?"

He never even blinked.

"[illegible] in America," he replied, "who is making much money. I want to join him there and settle down. He lives in South Bend, Indiana."

Plays Coming To Stage

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mrs. Martin Van Buren Meshbesher is the name of the lady who will be portrayed by Mary Boland in "Face the Music," the Irving Berlin musical revue that will be presented in the Nixon next week, with no matinees except those on Wednesday and Saturday. The name perhaps gives you a hint as to the type she plays in the revue, which is a satire the center of which is a millionaire policeman caught in a political investigation. This musical piece, by the way, is the first for which Irving Berlin has written anything in five years. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman helped him to turn it out. It is the birthplace of that popular ditty, "Let's Have Another Cup of Coffee." The box officers of the Nixon are taking care of seat shoppers right now.

* * *

"Twin Beds," the farce to be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players, will be given for a total of 10 performances in seven days, opening with a Christmas matinee, Monday, December 26. There also will be the customary Wednesday and Saturday matinees and an extra New Year show at midnight, Sunday, January 1. "Twin Beds" will be followed by an attraction in which Margaret Anglin will appear as guest star with the company. She will be seen in a role originated by Grace George in "The First Mrs. Fraser."

'Passage to Paradise' Title Changed

"The Woman Accused" has been decided upon by Paramount as the final title for the production formerly called "Passage to Paradise." This story, based on an original by Polan Banks, is being written for the screen by Rupert Hughes. Vicki Baum, Zane Grey, Vina Delmar, Irving S. Cobb, Sophie Kerr, Gertrude Atherton, J. P. McEvoy and Ursula Parrott and Banks, Cary Grant, Nancy Carroll and John Halliday have been cast in the picture and Paul Sloane has been assigned to the direction.

Next week's going to be another debutante week, with a deb event, usually a dance, almost every night. This week has been a grand round of teas and luncheons.

Starting off next week's balls will be that Mrs. Clinton L. Childs will give in the Pittsburgh Club to present her popular young daughter, Laura. Bertha Brooks, debutante daughter of the Twing Brookses, will receive with Laura and her mother, and of course share honors.

Then Tuesday night Georgianna Collin will make her debut at a dance in the Allegheny Country Club, which her parents, the junior W. W. Collins, will give, and Wednesday night Nancy Byers, the J. Frederic Byers' daughter, will curtsy at a ball at the same clubhouse. And Thursday night will bring the dinner-dance Thomas Mellon will give in the Pittsburgh Club for Patsy Mellon, Nancy Byers and Laura Childs.

* * *

Virginia Thaw, daughter of the William Thaws III, of New York, is in town for a few days, the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who is now at her Pittsburgh home, Forbes street.

* * *

Today's debutante is Esther McDowell, the David Franklin McDowells' daughter, who will make her curtsy to the social world this afternoon at a tea her mother will give in the family home, Fifth avenue.

Bowing At Tea

There'll be Christmas decorations. The debutante, who is brown-haired and brown-eyed, will wear wine-red velvet, made in princess style with brief puffed sleeves. Her sister Sarah will wear sapphire blue velvet.

Among the debs' aides will be Geraldine Rickets, of New York; Catherine Little, of Youngstown, O.; Eleanor Ramage, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Jane Fitzhugh, of Washington, and her sister, Mrs. Walter Morgan, Jr., of Roanoke, Va., all house guests of the McDowells.

* * *

The Anthony Martineks—Mrs. Martinek is the former Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman—gave an informal reception in Mrs. Martinek's Bellefield avenue home for about 80 guests, old friends of Mrs. Martinek. The Martineks were married Thursday night in New York.

Informal Reception

The home was decorated in Christmas greens and vivid poinsettias. A buffet supper was served.

And here's a bit of news that will interest all of you. Mrs. Taylor Allderdice will direct the Woman's City Club choral, as usual, when the choral sings Christmas carols at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the main lobby of the William Penn Hotel, decorated, by the way, with a sugar reproduction of the nativity.

A group of boys from Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., will be home tonight to spend the holidays with their parents. Among them are Allen Holding, son of the James C. C. Holdings, of Bryant street; William Gildersleve, son of Mrs. W. A. Forrest, of the Dithridge Apartments, and James Everhart, son of Dr. and Mrs. James K. Everhart, of Harriet street.

Margaret Lafferty Weds at Home Ceremony

Lafferty, of Amber street, their daughter, Miss Margaret Douglas Lafferty, became the bride of James Murdoch Henninger, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Henninger, of South Aiken avenue. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

The bride wore turquoise blue quilted crepe with a jacket trimmed in sable, and a corsage of orchids. Her mother wore black and gold chiffon and black lace and the bridegroom's mother chose hyacinth blue. Both wore sprays of orchids.

After the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Henninger left for New York and will sail tomorrow on the Monarch of Bermuda. Upon their return they will reside in the Coronado Apartments.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley College and the bridegroom is a member of the senior class at the University of Pittsburgh medical school.

WINTER-WEIGHT WOOL FABRIC FAVORED FOR FURLESS SUITS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—A winter-weight fabric of wool, corded or woven in some way to give the effect of corduroy, is one of the favorite materials for furless suits hereabouts. Paris women like to wear semi-tailored suits of this type of practical material, with sweaters, heavy wool scarfs and wool gloves, for shopping in town, or for driving in the country.

* * *

THERE IS A distinct sportsy air about most of these costumes. They are quite removed from the usual French tailored suit, with its crisp lines, carefully — though only slightly — padded shoulders, and formal daytime accessories. The 1933 Paris version of semi-tailored fashions is a costume which is familiar to American women—a skirt and jacket which is as much at home at golf as it is in a smart shop in town.

* * *

FAUVETY MAKES many of these new suits in the colors that Paris likes this year—warm browns, off-navy blue, grayed purple and wine reds. The one in today's sketch is red, of a dark, grape-like tone and is worn over a sweater that repeats the same red in combination with a chevron-shaped yoke of white.

* * *

AS THE SKETCH shows, there is little departure from simple classic lines in the cut of either skirt or jacket. The vertical portions of the fabric are kept toward the center of the body, the bias parts at the side. Buttons and buckles all kept to the same dark red coloring as the fabric.

Carey May Hasten Deal. | Vet Notes Grid Changes.

DODGER-BOTTOMLEY RUMORS DOUBTED

RUMORS THAT IT was not for its own use that the Cincinnati club obtained Jim Bottomley, but for the purpose of passing him along to Brooklyn in a second deal, are given little credence by outside baseball men. Having failed to induce Brooklyn to meet its own terms for the first baseman, the St. Louis club, it is figured, probably saw to it that the Dodgers would not get Sunny Jim later in a roundabout way by tying Cincinnati down to an agreement that the player must be retained by the Reds.

Joe Judge

The taking of Bottomley off the market may quicken Max Carey's efforts to get a new first baseman elsewhere. New York still hopes the Brooklyn manager will consent to give up Outfielder Johnny Frederick for Sam Leslie, but there is a chance that Carey will now abandon that deal altogether and make another attempt to get Joe Judge, the Washington veteran. Only a slight financial difference has blocked the signing of Judge so far. Brooklyn offered a $10,000 contract and a $2,500 bonus, it is said, but Judge held out for a bonus of $4,000.

IT APPEARS ROGER PECKINPAUGH, backed up by the Cleveland owners, has reached an understanding with Wesley Ferrell as to who's going to be who next season. Indian officials predict that not only will Ferrell do even greater pitching than in 1932, but that he will control his temper better, because he is to have a room all to himself with no chance for arguments.

So Ferrell is to be kept and no offers for him will be considered. The Indians tried hard to get Mickey Cochrane, but when the A's demanded Ferrell in exchange for the catcher the deal was called off.

EVIDENTLY CHARLEY GRIMM has a lot of faith in the judgment of his boyhood. When he saw the world champion Braves of 1914 play in their visits to his home city of St. Louis he was not yet 15 years old, yet he declares the Yankees of 1932 would have trimmed them four times in a row.

Grimm is quite a first baseman himself, but he admits he never saw one to compare with Lou Gehrig. Until the world series last fall he had never seen Gehrig play, but says that in those four games Lou showed him plenty and gave an exhibition that he'll never forget.

THOUGH THE MAJOR leagues have approved the chain store system and its deals, whereby a major league club may "sell" to one of its minor league farms a player who already has been optioned out three years, the legal limit, the player is not left without protection. Before he can be sent back to the minor league farm, waivers must be obtained from all the other big league clubs so that any of them has the right to block the deal by claiming the athlete. The owning club, in the event of such a claim being made, would be required either to keep the player or sell him to the claimant. And there is further protection for the player if he is waived out, for when sent back to a farm he must remain there during the draft period and be subject to the lottery.

Frank Hogan

THE FRANK HOGAN back-to-Boston movement has not been abandoned, according to reports. All efforts to make a deal for the Giant catcher at the recent league meetings were unsuccessful, but Bill McKechnie still hopes to put it over.

The previous obstacle was that New York wanted in exchange for Hogan a pitcher whom the Braves refused to let go. McKechnie believes that Bill Terry will now be willing to part with Hogan on different terms, and is confident of coming to an early agreement for the big catcher.

ONE OF FOOTBALL'S veterans of the early 90's marvels at the changes that have taken place in the sport. "We wore tight-fitting, sleeveless canvas jackets, laced over a jersey or a sweater," he said. "Short canvas pants, sometimes padded slightly at the knees. Many teams had only smooth-soled shoes, not a cleat in the outfit.

"Head guards were unknown. A few of us wore nose guards, which were made of rubber. They were held in place by an elastic band around the head. The top rested on the forehead and the lower end was held in the teeth. They were hard to breathe through.

"THERE WERE VERY few substitutions. When a player went in he enlisted for the duration of the war, and did not get out of the trenches until the timekeeper signaled the end of hostilities. We played 90 minutes, with a 10-minute rest at half time. Now they play 60 minutes, split up into four periods, with time out whenever a player wants to get a drink of water or blow his nose. And yet, during the years I played football, I saw only one player taken out because of a broken bone. That was a broken collar bone. It must be that the boys of today are more brittle."

AN ALL-TIME scoring record that has never been approached by any set of forwards in major league hockey has been hung up by Bill Cook, Bun Cook and Frank Boucher, who constitute the first line for the New York Rangers. In regular season and play-off games since November, 1926, they have passed the 700 mark in points and now boast 715.

Even if the three Rangers were not good for much further service and many more goals before they split up, the huge total already amassed would stand for a long time. The only line having a chance to pass it in years to come is the Toronto trio of Charley Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson, and that scoring combination still is far from the 700 circle.

THE SELECTION OF Tommy Slusser, of Pittsburgh, recently as captain of the Penn State football team for 1933 sent the dopesters scurrying to the record books for comparisons. A hasty check, later substantiated by more thorough search, showed that Slusser is the first Pittsburgh homebred to be chosen a Nittany grid captain in 30 years.

Tommy Slusser

The last Pittsburgher to hold the post previously, according to available records, was E. A. Whitworth, leader of the 1903 team. And, so far as can be recalled, Slusser has another peculiar distinction, that of being the first Nittany Lion football captain to bear the given name of Thomas.

WHILE MANY OF the Lion grid captains have been closely identified with Pittsburgh district football——Dex Very, Alex Gray, Pete Mauthe, Jack Martin and George Lasich, to mention a few—Whitworth was the last before Slusser to enter Penn State from a Pittsburgh high school. Slusser, the new leader, is a product of Schenley High School. As a freshman, he participated in four sports—football, basketball, baseball and boxing—but in his sophomore year he dropped baseball and basketball in favor of boxing. He was a member of the varsity ring team last winter, fighting at 160 pounds as a light-heavyweight. As the regular left end last season and the year before, Slusser was a mainstay of the Lion eleven's forward wall. He took part in every one of the seven games in 1932, and had more time on the field to his credit than any of the other players, Capt. Collins and Brewster, the opposite wingman, excepted.

CARAS BEATEN BY CHAMP IN CLOSE DUEL

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The National Pocket Billiard championship lies strictly between Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, and Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, with the other eight hopefuls definitely also-rans.

Greenleaf's seventh successive victory of the current championship tournament, a 125-to-69 triumph over 22-year-old Jimmy Caras last night, together with Rudolph's sixth victory in seven starts, left these two veteran masters of the game the sole remaining contenders for the crown now held by Greenleaf.

CHAMP NEAR TITLE

Greenleaf's two remaining games take him against Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, this afternoon and against Rudolph tomorrow night. Rudolph, before he clashes with the champion, must tackle Andrew Ponzi, the sensational Philadelphian, tonight. A victory for Greenleaf today, coupled with a defeat for Rudolph, automatically would clinch the title again for the dapper champion.

Caras, competing in his first championship, gave Greenleaf a tough fight before he surrendered to the champion's superb play last night. The Wilmington, Del., youngster took a long lead with a high run of 54 in the second inning, but Greenleaf met this with a cluster of 62 in his half of the same frame and then virtually clinched the title with another run of 50 in his third turn at the table. The next three innings were devoted to safety play, but Greenleaf finally got the balls rolling in the seventh and ran out the game.

Caras finished his tournament schedule with six victories and three defeats, good enough to assure him of at least a tie for third place. He might even have a chance at second should Rudolph lose both his remaining games.

RUDOLPH VICTOR

Rudolph's sixth victory in seven starts was achieved yesterday afternoon over Natalie, 125 to 49, in 18 innings. Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., veteran, completed his schedule with a 125-to-50 victory over George Kelly, his fourth triumph in nine matches. Kelly won two and lost seven.

Greenleaf, who played safe after pocketing one in his initial appearance at the table against Caras, answered the 22-year-old youth's challenge with a cluster of 62, finally missing when he chose to try a long down-the-table shot on the 13-ball so as to get in position to scatter the well-bunched pack of balls.

The Wilmington star appeared well on his way to another long run in the third but missed a tricky frozen combination on the 15-ball after sinking 14. He left the balls scattered for Greenleaf to put together his run of 50. The standings follow:

Player.	W.	L.
Edwin Rudolph, Cleveland	6	1
James Caras, Wilmington, Del.	6	3
Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia	5	3
Pasquale Natalie, Chicago	5	3
Benny Allen, Kansas City	5	4
Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y.	4	3
James Mills, San Jose, Cal.	2	7
George Kelly, Philadelphia	2	7
Walter Franklin, Kansas City	0	9

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: MOTHER-IN-LAW'S LUCK—The Kikuyu, who inhabit the northwestern part of British East Africa, have a great fondness for bizarre adornments. They plaster their bodies with a coat of terracotta earth mixed with grease. They wear large flat discs of buffalo horn in the lobes of their ears, and four pencil-like sticks in the top part of their earshells. But the most conspicuous adornment of the married Kikuyu is the curious braid of his mother-in-law's hair, plastered down with feathers of the guinea-fowl and mud, upon his back as a talisman (ithito) against the evil influences of which he is superstitiously afraid. THE ETERNAL PILGRIM—Abraham, a Russian peasant, who at the age of 75 had made 40 annual pilgrimages from Russia to the Holy Land, considered his entire life one continuous pilgrimage. For 40 years he spent nine months in every year tramping through the width and length of the vast Russian lands, to collect enough money to enable him to pay his meager steamship fare from Odessa, Ukraina, to Jaffa in Palestine. The weary wanderer was a welcome sight in the huts of his fellow mushiks, whom, in the long winter evenings, he would edify with tales of the Holy Land and of the "Lifegiving" Grave of Christ, which was the constant goal of his Eternal Pilgrimage at the end of an annual 2,500-mile trek.

COACH DRILLS SQUAD IN MUD AT DALLAS

EN ROUTE TO TUCSON WITH PITT FOOTBALL SQUAD, Dec. 21.—Pitt's Golden Panthers will spend the entire day on the train as they are rushed across the flat waste lands of Texas and New Mexico toward their next to last stopping place on the way to the Rose Bowl, Tucson, Ariz.

It is the last full day on the train for the Panthers, before settling down to real hard work, and all the boys are doing an extra good job of loafing.

Yesterday found Capt. Reider and his mates picking their way between patches of snow and ice at Ownby Stadium, at Dallas, as Jock Sutherland pushed them through a brisk signal drill and dummy scrimmage.

SNOW FOLLOWS PITT

The rain and snow which held up Pitt practices at home followed the team to Dallas, and for a while, at looked as though the anticipated workout was doomed.

The boys went through their paces briskly before a small group of interested Southern Methodist players and coaches, including Ray Morrison, head grid mentor at the Dallas institution.

As they watched the Panthers cavorting, the concensus of opinion was that Southern California would rip the light Pitt line to pieces. They can't get the idea of good little teams in this part of the country, and the sight of such midgets as Ted Dailey and Miller Munjas, evoked quite a little surprise.

Bill Kern's "Southern California" team gave the two varsity elevens a busy half-hour as his backs threw passes hither and yon, not completing too many.

TROJANS CHECK DEFENSE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The decree has gone out from the University of Southern California football training grounds that Pittsburgh must not pass—successfully—in the Rose Bowl game of January 2 at Pasadena.

This was evident from reports of yesterday's activities at Byard Field, in which Coach Howard Jones had the third team throwing a lot of passes at his first and second squads in a tough dummy scrimmage.

There was a certain amount of offensive work too, but the players admitted as they dragged themselves from the secret session that Coach Jones rather had given them a good working over on defense, including not a few pass formations.

Just how far the Trojans have been able to go in the way of getting up to date information on the Panther plays is not known, but the Southern California board of strategy figures that Pitt will be forced to do most of its campaigning through the air.

AFRAID OF PASSES

There may be some outcroppings of egotism on the part of Trojan followers as to the strength of the team's line and the ability of the squad to stop running formations, but the statistics bear out the supposition which Jones appears to entertain—that Pittsburgh must pass successfully to score touchdowns.

Most of the yards and both of the touchdowns scored on the U. S. C. eleven this year have resulted from passes. A long pass over the goal line in the California game, and a short, snappy pass in the Washington contest marked the only intrusions of the season.

Although Notre Dame was unable to score either by running plays or passes, the Ramblers completed far too many throws for the peace of mind of the Trojans.

SCHOOLS PLAN GRID LEAGUE

SUNBURY, Pa., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A "baby" football conference of small Central Pennsylvania high schools is being planned by representatives of 15 schools.

Representatives from Danville, Hughesville, Mifflinburg, Milton, Montgomery, Montoursville, Mt. Carmel Township, Muncy, Nescopeck, Picture Rocks, Northumberland, Selinsgrove, South Williamsport, Trevorton and Watsontown discussed the possibility of forming such a league last night.

Gruber Tribute On Seals' Bill Tonight

A tribute to the late John H. Gruber, for 40 years official baseball scorer in Pittsburgh, will be offered as a feature of the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight, by Sam Watters, secretary of the Pirates, and an intimate friend of Gruber for a quarter of a century.

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, in an interview with Charles J. Doyle, baseball writer of the Sun-Telegraph, will reveal the significance of the actions taken by the baseball moguls in the recent important annual meetings in New York, and also will discuss the leading trades which developed there.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies, and Herb McGee and Miss Marian Salmon also will participate in the program.

SPECIAL SOCCER TILT CARDED

By TOM BIRKS

Next Monday afternoon, the second annual international soccer match will be played at South Park between elevens of foreign-born soccer players under the jurisdiction of the West Penn Football Association.

This game had its inception last season, when the local governing body decided to give Western Pennsylvania soccer fans an idea of the type of soccer displayed by exponents of the European and American styles.

If there was any dispute regarding the style most effective, there wasn't when the game was over for the American contingent, led by Buff Donnelli, scored an overwhelming victory.

Naturally, the foreign born players did not take so kindly to the defeat, and it will be an hectic 90 minutes of action that will be served up for the fans when the teams take the field at Englebrook.

Buff Donnelli has not been selected to play by the committee, since he was under the weather when the squads were named. That will be a big load off the minds of the foreign-born players.

Pat O'Conner, member of the West Penn Referees' Association, and vice president of the United States Soccer Referees' union, in company with President Jimmy McFarlane, of Cleveland, attended the semi-annual meeting of the body in New York last week-end.

Only routine work was accomplished, but it developed that the annual convention of the body will not go to Chicago with the U. S. F. A. The knights of the whistle are considering either Detroit or Buffalo.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Red Grange and Cliff Battles, two of the ace ball-carriers of the National Professional League, the former with the Chicago Bears, new champions, and the latter with the Boston aggregation, were unable to make the first all-star team of the pros . . . Dutch Clark, at quarterback; Arnold Herber and Father Lumpkin, at the halves, and Bronko Nagurski, at full, were the backfield choices . . . Grange made the second team and Battles, former West Virginia Wesleyan star, was listed among the honorable mentions.

Incidentally, Grange, with 10 years of football competition behind him, is not the only veteran who is planning to give up the strenuous sport . . . Whitey Dummer and Mose Kelsch, local sandlot luminaries, are ready to call it quits after 19 and 18 years, respectively, in action.

The gross gate of better than $2,000 for the Jack King-Ted Yarosz return bout at the Arena the other night was a corker considering what boxing shows are drawing in other cities . . . A benefit show with four 10-round bouts featuring nationally famous performers, recently drew less than $1,000 in the Chicago Coliseum.

Want to know what Pitt's chances are of winning the Tournament of Roses game with the Southern California Trojans on January 2? . . . Okay, here's the dope, in a message from Clara Gunther, a feminine rooter, who writes: . . . "I have come to the conclusion after watching the coaches and some of you sports writers try to pick the winners of football games that you' use a chip basket and put on a blindfold act and I think you'd all do better picking tomatoes . . . No one gave Pitt a chance against Notre Dame and most of you people also picked the Irish over Southern California, and just look at what happened! . . . Now you're all picking the Trojans over Pitt . . . Oh, well, here's hoping your holidays are happy ones."

Strangler Lewis, the wrestler, gets a loud guffaw every time he picks up a paper and reads that he is just a fat old man. . . . He gets a kick out of thinking what a fine bunch of palookas the younger crop of wrestlers are if he is an ancient wreck and still is able to hold his own with or beat them.

COACH RESIGNS AT FLORIDA

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 21.—They are looking for a new head football coach at the University of Florida today and a general shakeup of the university's athletic department looms.

Yesterday, Charles W. Bachman, former Notre Dame star, tendered his resignation as head coach, effective July 1, 1933. Bachman came here five years ago.

Simultaneously with Bachman's resignation a general shakeup in the athletic department of the university was revealed, in which all employes, from the athletic director down, have been made "free agents."

LEHIGH GOES "GATES"

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The board of control of athletics at Lehigh University has disbanded in connection with adoption of a modified "Gates plan" for handling sports.

Hereafter intercollegiate sports and physical educational activities at Lehigh will be taken over by a director of athletics, who will have final authority in all athletic matters, subject only to the president of the university and the board of trustees.

The plan partly is patterned after the athletic policy established at the University of Pennsylvania by President Thomas S. Gates.

BRADMAN IN LINEUP

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 21.—Australian hopes to even the test match cricket series with England in the second contest beginning December 30 bounded up today with the report that Don Bradman, leading Aussie batsman, was back in shape again. England won the first test easily, with Bradman out.

GUS TOSSES CHINAMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Gus Sonnenberg, 260, Boston, threw Wong Bock Cheung, 204, China, in 27 minutes, 24 seconds, of wrestling at the Coliseum last night.

EASTERN STARS NEAR COAST

DENVER, Dec. 21.—The All-Eastern football team, which meets a team of All-Western players in the annual Shriners' Hospital charity game in San Francisco New Years Day, was due to stop off here today for a brief workout before continuing on to Palo Alto, where it will train for the game with the Westerners.

The team was an hour late last night in arriving at North Platte, Neb., where a short drill had been carded. Most of the players were at dinner when the train pulled into the station.

The athletes, under the direction of Coaches Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and Andy Kerr, of Colgate, worked out at Grand Island yesterday afternoon. Their opponents in the contest January 2 have been chosen from the Big Six, Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast conferences.

HILL RELEASED

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees have released Outfielder Jesse Hill on option to their International League farm at Newark. Hill came to the Yankees from the Pacific Coast League and played most of last season with Newark. He is being farmed out again for a little more experience.

GRID COACHES SET FOR 1933 IN TRI-STATE DISTRICT

JOB AT GENEVA ONLY ONE TO BE FILLED

By JESS CARVER

Once they select someone to succeed Howard Harpster at Geneva, the tri-state district football coaching situation for 1933 will be well in hand, provided, of course, that between now and next fall, none of the present crop of mentors resigns, is fired or discovers the error of his ways and takes up plastering.

The situation here in Pittsburgh is quiet. Sutherland is a fixture at Pitt, Layden will remain at Duquesne, and Harpster has been signed by his alma mater out at Tech. Layden would have resigned, or ask to be released from his contract at Duquesne, had the offer from Iowa last year been more alluring, but right now, the former fullbacker of the Four Horsemen is well satisfied to continue as the head man on the Bluff.

SUTHERLAND SET

There's as much chance of them letting Sutherland go at Pitt as there is of the Yankees swapping Babe Ruth for the Boston Red Sox batboy. Jock might apply for his release if an attractive enough offer bobbed up, but the Scotchman is roosting in about as "cushiony" fashion at Pitt as any coach in the East. He has a comparatively soft schedule for next year (any schedule would be soft after this year's killer) and a right promising layout of material.

Present hands will be on deck at all other schools in the district, with the possible exception of West Virginia, where they may wave bye-bye to Greasy Neale. Bill Amos is expected back at Grove City; Jack Stoeber will return at Thiel and John Lawther at Westminster. Gene Edwards is the king at St. Vincent and Hank Day has a long contract at Wash-Jeff. Frank Wolf just about owns Waynesburg and Cebe Ross, at West Virginia Wesleyan, and Cam Henderson, at Davis-Elkins, have little or nothing to worry over, unless they've been playing too much 10-cents-a-point contract of late.

Athletic Director Edgecomb at Geneva has a bushel basket full of applications for the job vacated by Harpster. The chances are that if Harp hadn't taken Don Lovewell along with him to Tech, that the former Tartan guard would have stepped into the head job. Lovewell has evidenced real ability as a line coach, and if you can turn out a strong enough line, it is comparatively easy to teach some fast steppers the correct way to put the ball down once over the goal line.

MAY SIGN LOEFFLER

Geneva may be expected to do one of two things—continue to employ the Carnegie Tech style of play, which will mean that another Tech man will follow Harpster, or introduce a new system and sign a coach for both football and basketball. They are having to cut at Geneva and it is not without the range of possibility to predict that Ken Loeffler, the basketball mentor, who has studied football at Penn State and who played it as a student at Beaver Falls High School, may be offered a year-round job.

The Covenanters are expected to hold off until after the first of the year before naming a successor to Harpster.

For a time this fall, it looked like Greasy Neale was sure to be out looking for a new job. The boys were up in arms at West Virginia, and, as Greasy stepped into the job at Morgantown with the state divided on the matter of accepting him, the outlook for Mr. Neale's return in '33 was not overly rosy.

The Mountaineers, forgetting the defeat at the hands of the Dukes (or at the foot of Red Sullivan) and the rout in the Pitt game, began to click, and mowed down all opposition with pleasing regularity. In the season's finale, however, Wash-Jeff put on a comeback of its own and beat the Mountaineers, said defeat causing Neale's foes to renew their howls.

But Harry Adam Stansbury, the athletic director, is strong for Greasy and Harry is "the" man at West Virginia, so as long as Harry Adam wants Greasy, and can continue to beat him by three strokes or more for 18 holes, it looks like Greasy will stick.

The Tipoff

Harry Stuhldreher is to be back at Villanova as football coach next year, but it looks as if the Villanova authorities have clipped his wings a bit. Not only is he to coach football, but he's to serve as a full-time professor of physical education and it will be up to him to build up an intramural program of athletics.

The part that interests Pittsburgh the most in the new Villanova setup is the fact that Harry is to have only ONE assistant instead of the two he's had previous to this time. Cy Huntzinger and Bob Reagan, the latter former line coach here at Duquesne, and a right pert one, too, have been aiding Stuhldreher, now one has to go. Inasmuch as Reagan was the last to be taken on, it looks like Canonsburg job will be out job-hunting.

If Geneva College wishes to make a smart move (and of course, quit the Carnegie Tech system which was installed by Howard Harpster), the Covenanters could do no better than to sign Reagan. Bob knows his line play. He turned out good lines here at Duquesne and better ones at Villanova. He'd make a popular coach and would have the boys with him.

Football men who know a prospect when they see one will watch with interest the future development of a pair of Ambridge High School lads, Eddie Gutowski and John Michelosen. Gutowski has played halfback, tackle and center during his stay at Ambridge. Michelosen is a back. Both are star performers and both right hefty. They look like the type you see playing the tackles out at Pitt. Maybe they'll do just that, who knows?

W. Liberty Has Win Streak Broken

WHEELING, Dec. 21.—After 41 consecutive victories on the basketball court, the West Liberty teachers today know how it feels to lose.

Last night, the West Liberty passers lost their first game of the season to Rio Grande College, of Ohio, 37 to 34. The Allison brothers, of Rio Grande, proved too tough for the West Liberty defense, scoring 22 points between them.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

Billy Roche becomes his manager—Joe Humphries enters picture—A victory over Dan O'Dowd for a meagre purse

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

I wanted to fight. I was in fighting shape. I expressed the desire for work to Sammy Kelly several times. Sammy made inquiries, but, as there was no boxing in New York state at that time, Sammy found it most difficult to place me. I was impatient. I wanted action. To appease me, Sammy offered me money in advance. As he had already advanced me $100, it did not seem wise to me to increase the partnership indebtedness. I refused any proffer, but insisted on his procuring me a match.

Gene Tunney

Eventually, Charles A. Stoneham came to Sammy's rescue by sending him to Havana to represent him in a business venture of some kind. When Sammy left for Havana, I was worried, not particularly about my prospects of the future, but because I owed him $100 and could think of no way of repaying him.

I told him that, since he would be away several months, I thought it wise to allow some manager to take care of me in his absence. He mentioned Charley Harvey as a good representative and manager. Not knowing Harvey, I told him I would rather have Billy Roche.

UNABLE TO GET BOUTS

I was anxious to have Billy because he had seen me in all my important matches in France and believed in my destiny almost as sincerely as I. Billy agreed to handle me in the absence of Sammy Kelly and accepted the same terms that existed between Kelly and me—25 per cent of all purses. There was no allowance made for training expenses, as we did not expect to engage any high-priced sparring partners or trainers.

After several weeks in which Roche made strenuous endeavors to get me matched in every city east of the Mississippi, he acknowledged with embarrassment that we would have to bide our time and take chances of a substitution or some such thing coming along. He said all the matchmakers with whom he was acquainted, and there were many, had my name on file and would put me in at the first opportunity.

In the meantime, I continued broke and in debt. I wore a path to Billy's office in the celebrated Putnam Building (site now of the Paramount Theater) and became a familiar figure to the numerous tenants of that rendezvous of sharp wits and Broadway chiselers. One day I followed Billy to the office of Jack Curley, the wrestling promoter, which was just across Times Square.

In Curley's office I was introduced for the first time to the great Joe Humphreys, the man who has made an institution of his powerful lungs and made prize-fight announcing an art, of which he is the old master.

After talking with Joe for a few minutes and acquainting him with our difficulty, he said:

"I am going down to announce a fight between light-heavyweights at Perth Amboy, N. J., tonight. Why don't you come down with me and challenge the winner? You are a likely-looking young fellow and the promoters will probably give you a match. I will do whatever I can."

MEETS JOE HUMPHRIES

Billy Roche and I went down on the Jersey Central with Joe, hopeful that between my reputation as the A. E. F. light-heavyweight champion and Joe's good offices we could procure a match at the club for some later date. Joe, generous soul that he is, paid the railroad fares down and back. He duly introduced me, and in his challenge to the winner I am afraid he waxed too eloquent. The winner, Eddie Josephs, of Staten Island, would have no part of me. At the conclusion of the match, his brother-manager made that plain to Promoter McNulty and me in no uncertain terms.

MATCH WITH O'DOWD

Though the trip home was full of mirth and laughter because of Joe's wit and stories, my heart was heavy, for another chance had fizzled. I continued training and hoping. And then, one day, after I had got in touch with the chief clerk of the Ocean Steamship Company and made a disguised inquiry as to the possibility of getting back my old job of rate clerk (there was none), Billy Roche telephoned my home and said he had matched me to fight Dan O'Dowd, of Boston.

O'Dowd a week before had fought an eight-round no-decision battle with Bill Brennan, then a leading contender for the heavyweight championship. The fight was to take place at the Bayonne A. A., of which Charley Doesserick was the promoter. Again good old Charley came to my rescue, as he had done in 1917. The Bayonne A. A. was located in a summer amusement park in Bayonne, N. J. The match took place on December 15, 1919, and, though the weather was unusually cold, the arena had no heat but that exuded by the human body. We had to fight to keep warm.

O'Dowd turned out to be a very tough and game fellow, and, though I battered him around a good deal, I was unable even to knock him down. My remuneration for this match was $201—25 per cent of the gate receipts. Billy took the agreed stipulation. I netted $150.75. No money in the hands of anyone, no matter how great or small the sum may have been, was ever magnified to the extent that that $150.75 was in my eyes. I felt like the governor of the Bank of England.

GIVES MOTHER EARNINGS

I took my earnings home. They were in $1, $2 and $5 bills, with few fives and many ones. Coming down for breakfast the next morning, I brought with me my little bag containing the purse. I dumped it on the table of the dining room and my mother, seeing this heap of bills, said as fervently as any prayer she ever uttered:

"God bless and spare the hands that can make so much money in one night."

Several days later, however, she was admonishing me again about getting into a gentlemanly business career.

This O'Dowd match established me somewhat. A few days later Dave Driscoll, matchmaker for a club holding fights in the Jersey City Armory, called Billy Roche and asked him if he would take a guarantee of $200 for me to box Bob Pierce, of Chicago, on December 29, 1919. Billy accepted immediately.

KNOCKS OUT PIERCE

It is astonishing what a change in psychology a feeling of security from immediate want, brings. The one match with Dan O'Dowd lifted me from the dumps and all I could see ahead was the sunshine of success. I quickly disposed of Bob Pierce, knocking him down several times and finally out in the second round. This match brought me for the first time to the notice of the boxing experts of the metropolitan papers.

The criticisms of my fight with Pierce were favorable. One writer said:

"Here is a young heavyweight with some class. He will do."

Doesserick, being satisfied with the showing I made on my first attempt at his club, signed me for another match to take place three days after the Pierce fight at the matinee show on New Years Day, 1920. He procured Whitey Allen as my opponent. Allen came from the Bronx. He had a reputation for honest and industrious effort over a long career.

Tunney learned to master ring fear and the vital importance of coolness during battles, early in 1920, with Whitey Allen and K. O. Sullivan. He will describe them tomorrow in these columns.

BABE TO TURN PRO SOON

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, phenomenal girl athlete, resigned her job and drove south toward the Gulf of Mexico last night, leaving sports followers to puzzle over reports she planned to turn professional and that she was considering matrimony.

Miss Didrikson apparently was on her way to her Beaumont home to spend the holidays with her family, but she could not be found. Mrs. C. Didrikson said she understood that her daughter, who recently was suspended by the Amateur Athletic Union because she allegedly indorsed a motor car, expected to turn professional soon.

At Houston the athlete's sister, Mrs. Esther Elam, laughed at reports that Babe was to be married. She said there was "absolutely nothing to it."

A typewritten statement was issued to Houston papers as coming from Miss Didrikson. It was confirmed by Mrs. Elam as authentic. One paragraph read:

"This is my last word concerning my suspension. So far as I am concerned, it is a closed incident. Newspapers and the public must be tired of the whole business. I know I am."

Supporting the belief that Miss Didrikson plans to turn professional was the revelation that the automobile company whose advertisement was the direct cause of the controversy over her standing as an amateur had offered to sponsor her professionalism in case the A. A. U. refused her request for reinstatement.

The offer of the automobile firm to sponsor her as a professional was revealed by Miss Didrikson herself to a group of newspapermen last week, with the request that the information be withheld at the time.

It was learned that Miss Didrikson had held a long conference with the automobile company officials a few hours before she turned in her resignation to the insurance company. The nature of the conference was not revealed.

TOUR CONTEMPLATED

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(INS.)—Within 48 horus, probably less, Miss Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, the one-girl track team from Texas, is scheduled to announce her professionalism. Suspended by the A. A. U. because her picture and testimonial appeared in an automobile advertisement without her permission, she claims, the wonder girl is declared to be ready to take the fateful step with a series of exhibitions and personal appearances.

One of the stunts planned for her is a nation-wide tour in which she will compete, single-handed and on terms of equality, against a team of girl athletes in exhibition meets. The premiere of the tour is scheduled to be sponsored in New York shortly after the first of the year.

Gelbert to Play For Cards Again

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—Doctors who at first feared Charley Gelbert, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, had ended his major league career when he shot himself in the left leg while hunting rabbits this fall, were more optimistic today. They will perform a bit of plastic surgery on him next week and expect him to be able to resume his duties during the coming season. Charley says he will be on the job at the training camp in the spring.

The fact that Gelbert just missed severing a tendon in the accident saves him from disability.

PA.-N. Y. BOXING BOARDS SPLIT OVER POREDA

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 21.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania and the New York State Athletic Commissions have severed relations.

The break became known here today when Harry T. Farrell, chairman of the Pennsylvania Commission, made public a letter he sent to John J. Phelan, acting chairman of the New York Commission, protesting the approval of a bout between Stanley Poreda and Ernie Schaaf.

Farrell said the New York Commission approved the bout December 16, despite the fact it had concurred in Pennsylvania's suspension for Poreda's alleged failure to honor a contract to meet George Godfrey in Philadelphia.

GILBERT NEAR RIDING TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—(AP.)—Hank Mills is falling further and further behind Johnny Gilbert in their race for premier jockey honors for 1932.

At Jefferson Park here yesterday, Gilbert rode a double and virtually clinched riding honors for the year.

Scoring with Jack Biener in the first race and with George Collins' Justina in the fifth and featured attraction, Gilbert ran his season's total to 198 winners. Six behind trails Mills and there seems little chance for him to overhaul the Kansas youngster.

LUMBAGO TAKES SHADE OFF ARENA CARD

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Benefit amateur boxing bouts, G. B. U. Hall, Mt. Oliver.

Tommy Paul vs. Frankie Wallace and Georgie Nichols vs. Harry English, 10 rounds each, Toledo.

Paul Dazzo vs. Johnny Mitchell, 10 rounds, and Henry Gonaich vs. Mickey Nelson, 8 rounds, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Old Man Dave Shade is a fragile bit of humanity.

A few weeks ago, he was slated to box Frankie Goosby, local Negro puncher, in the main bout at the Arena, and came up with an infected great toe and had to cancel.

They were rematched for Friday night of this week, and what do you suppose is wrong with Dave now?

The long-time middleweight contender has lumbago. Yes, sir, lumbago. And it's spelled just as it's pronounced, and feels worse. So Lew Raymond, the Arena matchmaker, has signed Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, of Huntington, Wa. Va., Bunny Buntach's newest acquisition, to take Shade's place against Goosby at 165 pounds.

YAROSZ'S HAND HURT

Incidentally, Raymond today revealed the fact that Ted Yarosz went into his return bout with Jack King at his club on Monday night suffering from a bad left hand. Ted didn't say anything about it in advance because he didn't want to have it construed as an alibi. Now that the bout's over and Yarosz has established the fact that he's King's master, there's no need to withhold the information any longer.

Jules Beck, Motor Square matchmaker, still is on the lookout for an opponent for Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion, in his main bout, Christmas afternoon, with Yarosz unable to take the match. He expects to nail a good foe today.

Between Rounds

Bill Schwerin boxes Carl Berg in one of the feature bouts of the amateur show for the benefit of the needy families of the Hilltop in G. B. U. Hall, Mt. Oliver, tonight, under the auspices of the Mt. Oliver and Knoxville Business Men's Association. Other bouts: Al Quaill vs. Vince Browning, Jimmy Campbell vs. Jackie Fields, Jackie Peters vs. Bill Zorek, Alex Mancini vs. Tubby Mills, Floyd Walnut vs. John Marocek, Tommy Casion vs. Ray Eberle and Frank Karnash vs. James Bradley.

Sherty Washko, Duquesne bantamweight, who defeated Johnny Woods in his professional debut at the Arena, is angling for more bouts. He is a stablemate of Dan Billick, same weight, the pair being handled by Andrew Black, of Duquesne.

GOTTSELIG BACK

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Johnny Gottselig, star center of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, on the injured list since November 22, will rejoin the club in time to play against the Montreal Maroons at Montreal tomorrow night.

U. S. Diving Star On Eastern Tour

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Georgia Coleman, American Olympic diving star, is en route today for the East to appear in a series of diving exhibitions, beginning at Miami, Fla.

Miss Coleman will arrive in Miami Christmas eve from Florida she will go to Washington, where she will make an appearance. She also will give exhibitions in New York, Buffalo, Toledo and Chicago, returning to her home here about January 9.

UPSETS, CLOSE CALLS MARK SCHOOL COURT BATTLES

BRIDGERS BOW IN FRAY AT SWISSVALE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Some of the elite of the Western Pennsylvania high school basketball teams found themselves in sadder but wiser moods today, two or three nursing the sting of upset defeats and others thankful they had nothing tougher than close calls in last night's contests.

In one of the big upsets of the evening, Ed Paulie's Swissvale passers defeated the crack Ambridge High quintet, coached by Moe Rubenstein, 22 to 20. Ross Emrick's four field goals and single foul proved the undoing of the Bridgers.

Eddie Gutowski, stellar Ambridge all-round athlete, and John Michelosen, did all they could to add another victory to their list, but their efforts failed. Gutowski scored seven points on two field goals and three fouls. Michelosen had three goals.

NEW CASTLE PRESSED

At New Castle, the Union Township team, a Class B five, gave the Bridenbaugh-coached quintet a scare, New Castle winning by 25 to 22. Mt. Lebanon gave Nate Lippe's Aliquippa team a tough session, bowing by a 17 to 13 count, and Uniontown was upset by Clairton, 36 to 32.

Westinghouse put on the power as the City League teams continued their pre-season battling to crush Carrick, 58 to 7. Peabody was 10 points better than Vocational, winning 33 to 23, and South walloped Oliver, 56 to 25. Allderdice lost to its alumni, 29 to 25, and Allegheny bowed before Schenley, 24 to 14.

In the Westinghouse-Carrick game, Johnson, Westinghouse forward, set an individual scoring mark for other City Leaguers to shoot at this season by accounting for 16 points on eight field goals.

Down the Beaver Valley, Beaver Falls defeated Midland, 20 to 13, and Rochester won over Freedom, 24 to 20. The Carnegie Tech B team downed Rankin, 34 to 19 in a charity benefit game at Rankin. Geneva Defeated By St. Thomas

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 21.—Geneva College's touring basketball team prepared to meet Rider College here tonight with an even break in the two games played on the road to date. After beating an independent team at Windber, Pa., Monday, the Covenantors lost to St. Thomas, at Scranton, last night in a thrilling battle, 38 to 37.

It was a nip and tuck battle from start to finish, and was decided in the last half-minute of play, when Eddie Deitch, St. Thomas center, caged a sensational one-hand shot to send the home team out front.

Manning, Geneva's high scoring forward, tallied 16 points to keep his team in the running, while Cliff Aultman caged four field baskets and a foul. The lineup:

Lefty Grove Leads American League Hurlers Fourth Straight Year

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Bob Grove, the Philadelphia Athletics' great lefthander, led the American League pitchers of the past season for the fourth year in succession, according to the official figures given out for publication today.

As computed from the earned run averages, Grove was far ahead of the field with his mark of 2.84. Charley Ruffing, of the New York Yankees, was second, and Ted Lyons, the Chicago White Sox star, third, despite his card of only 10 victories as against 15 defeats with the second division team.

Alvin Crowder, a Pirate for a short spell, was a standout pitcher of the A. L. circuit, with 26 victories and 13 defeats. Crowder led the circuit in innings pitched with the exceptional total of 327 rounds of hurling. The records:

Grove City Rally Upsets Edinboro

GROVE CITY, Pa., Dec. 21.—Grove City College's basketball players breathed sighs of relief today that the game with Edinboro State Teachers was over.

Last Saturday night, Edinboro upset the dope by beating Westminster, but the Grovers figured the outcome just another upset and failed to take the Teachers seriously. Last night, the locals had to stage a rally in the third period to eke out a 32 to 30 victory. Some fine shooting by Stavnitsky and Laycock enabled the Grovers to win. The lineup:

STOCKS MAKE WEAK EFFORT TO RECOUP

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Stocks made a rather feeble effort today to recoup the losses of yesterday's setback.

Several issues pushed up fractions to a point in the early dealings, but the list eased off later, and scattered selling came into the coppers, tobaccos and rails. In the main, industrials held up fairly well.

Early gains of around a point in American Can, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas and Union Pacific were lost in the later trading. United States Steel preferred, a recent weak spot, rallied 1½, then lost part of its gain. American Tobacco "B" lost nearly 2 points, and Lorillard and Reynolds sagged fractionally. In the coppers and rails, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific lost fractions. Oils were about steady. United States Steel common sagged a fraction, Owens Bottle and Crown Cork were heavy.

Bullish sentiment in brokerage circles appeared to have been considerably dampened by yesterday's slump.

The midweek business statistics were not without bright spots. Some of the individual carloadings reports have shown some fair gains, contrary to the usual seasonal trend. This was particularly notable in the case of New York Central, which came within 9.1 per cent of the volume in the like week of last year. This was almost entirely attributed to a pickup in automobile manufacturing.

The weekly electric power production figures, showing a sharper gain than in any of the corresponding weeks of the past three years, may also have reflected in part the acceleration in the motor industry. The work on 1933 models was said to be about the only sustaining influence in the steel industry, which appeared to be in for a period of extreme holiday quiet. A reflection of the automobile activity in the coppers and the Detroit Board of Commerce's employment index, which stood at 44.2 on December 15, compared with 39.3 on November 30, and 60.7 on December 15, 1931.

Bearish gossip of one sort and another was promoted by yesterday's slump.

POWER OUTPUT PICKS UP

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Electric power production picked up sharply in the past week, the weekly tabulation of the National Electric Light Association showed today.

While a gain in the week ending December 17 is the usual seasonal experience, the upturn this year was substantially larger than in the years 1931, 1930 or even 1929. To a substantial degree, it presumably reflected dark stormy weather over much of the country.

Total kilowatt hours for the past week were 1,563,384,000, a gain of 44,462,000 over the previous week. In the same week last year, the gain over the previous week was less than 4,000,000, and in 1929, about 19,000,000.

Last week's production was 6.7 per cent under last year, the best comparison in five weeks. The previous week had been off 9.1 per cent from 1931. The comparison made with last year by New England alone failed to improve, being off 5.6 per cent from 1931, against 5.4 per cent in the previous week.

LONGER TERM BONDS HELD HELPFUL

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—United States Treasury policy is vitiating some of the expected favorable effects on business of the current regime of easy money, according to some of the well-informed bankers here.

As a result of the Treasury method of loading the banks up with United States short-term paper, the funds released by the easy policy have gravitated to an inordinate degree into government securities. If the government began to refund part of this increasingly unwieldly short-term debt into long-term bonds, they would be absorbed by investors and to some extent taken out of the banks.

Mr. Rukeyser

SHUN PRIVATE PAPER

Then the banks would have more incentive to buy the paper of private industry. As the officer in charge of the cash position of one of the principal Loop banks remarked to me, as long as the banks can average a little better than the cost of deposits on short-term government maturities their desire to be liquid will result in their taking government paper to the exclusion of private bonds.

He added that the strong banks were making all the good commercial loans available, but he pointed out that there was little demand for short-term loans from the best commercial names on account of the subnormal character of current business.

However, this banker felt that if the supply of short-term governments were decreased the banks would be forced to seek other profitable outlets for their funds in order to earn expenses. He thought they would turn to bonds of public utility operating companies and of industrial corporations with reasonably short maturities.

WOULD RAISE PRICES

Such bank buying, he reasoned, would raise the prices of such bonds, and would tend to increase the credit of such corporations, bringing nearer the time when new and additional bonds of the same corporations could be sold to investors, thus sucking into job-creating industry the plethora of funds, which up to the present have either been going into short-term governments exclusively or remaining idle as excess reserves.

Last week I discussed the desirability, from the standpoint of the Treasury itself, of getting some of the short-term obligations converted into long-term bonds. Approaching the subject from the standpoint of the banks and business, some of the studious commercial bankers here think that until the government relies less on short-term paper it will tend to prevent business and employment from getting the benefits of the easy money policy, which has been promoted by the Federal Reserve System by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and by special emergency legislation.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The bond market moved cautiously and irregularly today and traders and most investors showed little inclination to take a positive position. Some of the United States government obligations edged up to new 1932 tops. Foreign loans were mixed and rather quiet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim Returns to Mary Faith When Romance With Other Girl Ends

CHAPTER XII.

She sat there thinking things out . . . Of course her job was gone. It would be impossible to go back to Nesbit's after today. That was certain.

It was also certain that it would be a long time before she found another position that was as good and paid as well.

"If you and Mr. Nesbit had words, how did it happen that he brought you home in his car?" the voice of Mrs. Puckett cut across her thoughts.

"Dinner's served, ma'am," said Agnes from the doorway.

But Mrs. Puckett had made up her mind to get an answer to her question. After dinner she came lumbering up the stairs to Mary Faith's room.

"I've been putting two and two together," she said, sitting down heavily on the side of the bed. "And I've made up my mind that that man asked you to marry him—or, at least, he tried to make love to you, didn't he?"

Mary Faith was sitting at her dressing table, polishing her nails. She bent her head lower over them.

"He did ask me to marry him."

KIM VISITS

Mrs. Puckett threw her plump hands into the air. "I knew it," she said quickly; "I knew it! And you turned him down?"

Mary Faith nodded.

"Well, all the fools aren't dead yet, it seems," Mrs. Puckett groaned. "Mary Faith, let me give you some advice. . . . You go down to that office in the morning and tell that man you've changed your mind. Tell him you'll marry him and have something in your life besides a dirty office all day long and a boarding house full of funny people to come home to at night! And you'd better get down on your knees this minute and pray to heaven that he doesn't change his mind about you overnight!"

It was the first time in her life that she had ever spoken of her house as anything but a family hotel and a first-class one, at that. There was a sparkle of tears behind her steel-rimmed glasses and her old chin worked.

A knock came on the door, and then Agnes' voice: "Miss Fenton, there's a gentleman downstairs to see you."

Mary Faith opened the door. "It's Mr. Farrell, ma'am. Mr. Farrell that used to come to see you, you know." Agnes was smiling. She had always liked Kim and given him extra portions of cream and dessert when he came to the house for meals.

"Close the door, Agnes, and wait there in the hall for a minute."

A CASUAL GREETING

"So he's turned up again like a bad penny—just at the wrong time!" she said in a half whisper as soon as the door had closed upon Agnes. "I wouldn't see him if I were you, Mary Faith. Don't think that I don't know how he's treated you, because I do. I know he threw you overboard three months ago, not caring what happened to you! And now that you're on your feet again and have a chance to marry a man with money and position, back he comes to make you miserable again! . . . Let me go down and tell him you're never going to see him again."

Mary Faith shook her head. Her face had gone dead white and her eyes were like blue-black water.

"I'm going down," she said, and she went.

Kim was waiting for her at the foot of the stairs. His fur-collared overcoat was on the hall table, and he was turning and twisting his hat in his hands as he watched her come down the last flight of steps.

Her heart seemed to be beating all over her body and there was a singing in her ears, but she greeted him casually as if she had been seeing him every night for months.

"Hello, Kim."

"Get your coat," he said. "Get your hat and coat. I want you to go for a drive."

FLAME OF JEALOUSY

Her wraps hung on the hall rack where she had put them before dinner while Miss Halperin was using her room. She took them down and put them on with hands that were shaking.

"All right, Kim, I'm ready."

The minute the front door had closed upon them he burst forth: "Mary Faith, I've been like a crazy man for the last three hours! To see you walk into that store and let that fellow buy a ring for you! To see my girl with another man! Good Lord, I couldn't stand it, Mary Faith!"

He opened the door of his little car and they got into it. They sat there looking at each other in the flickering radiance of the street lamp that stood in front of Mrs. Puckett's house.

"I wore your ring for a good many years, Kim. I wore it until you took it away from me," Mary Faith said quietly.

He nodded, his hands pressed to his temples. "I know— I know. Don't talk to me about it. Don't tell me what a fool I was."

Suddenly he dropped his hands from his face and caught Mary Faith by her wrists.

"You can believe me or not, but I love you more this minute than I ever did in my life before."

"Only because you think I'm someone else's," Mary Faith answered him. "You haven't wanted to see me for three months, Kim. You've been perfectly happy with that girl. You were perfectly happy with her tonight in that store where you were buying her a mesh bag."

LIKE A CHILD

Her pulses were still now, and she could think clearly once again.

"You're what Mrs. Puckett would call a 'dog in the manger,'" she said. "You don't want me, yourself, and you don't want anybody else to have me."

Kim groaned. "Don't talk like that, Mary Faith. . . . I swallow my pride and come here to try to fix things up between us—and you won't even listen to me."

He was like a child, begging to be forgiven. He laid his head down on the back of the seat and buried his face in her shoulder. Mary Faith sat very still.

"You don't care for that fellow," he said, in a muffled voice. "You couldn't have forgotten all about me in just a few weeks. You aren't like that, Mary Faith. And even if he's given you the biggest diamond in Armbruster's store, you're still my girl."

Mary Faith clasped and unclasped her ringless hands.

"I wore your diamond for a long time, Kim," she reminded him; "and I'd still be wearing it if you hadn't taken it away from me—because of that girl."

"Now, let's not talk about her!" he said irritably. "She doesn't mean a thing in my life any more, and she knows it. I haven't seen her more than three or four times in the last month. I haven't seen anybody—I've been restless and down in the dumps for a long time. But I didn't know what ailed me until you came walking into Armbruster's tonight with that fellow. Then I knew I'd been missing you all the time."

SORRY FOR HIM

He lifted his blond head and looked at her. The light from the street lamp shone into his face. He was anxious and grave, very unlike his usual debonair self.

"Lord, if you only knew what I've been through the last three hours!" he said, shaking his head. "I'd asked Janet to have dinner with me, and I had to go through with it. I sat there looking at her and thinking of you . . . Mary Faith, you've got to take me back. You've got to believe I love you."

She did believe him. She could see that he really had been suffering for three hours as she had suffered for three months. And pity and tenderness welled up in her all at once so that it was hard for her to speak.

"Kim, listen to me—I'm not engaged to Mark Nesbit. That ring we were picking out wasn't a ring for me but a Christmas present for his sister, Judith. I've never thought of marrying anybody but you. I've never cared for anyone but you. I've never cared for anyone else—and if you never had come back to me I'd probably have spent my whole life right here in River Street, waiting for you!"

She gave a shaky little laugh. "You know it too. That's the worst of it, Kim. You're too sure of me."

He shook his head. "No, I'm not sure of you," he said; "and that's why I've made up my mind to marry you tomorrow."

He put his arms around her and pulled her close to him. He pressed back her head with one swift hand and his face came down over hers, blotting out the stars, as he kissed her.

It seemed to Mary Faith then that she must have known all along that Kim would come back to her like this.

She thought, "If I hadn't known it I couldn't have gone on the way I have."

"I haven't had any vacation this year," Kim said presently, "so the firm probably won't kick if I take a couple of weeks now for a honeymoon . . . I'll drive around here for you at 10 tomorrow morning and we'll go downtown for the license. You can have some things packed and be ready to leave then, can't you?"

Mary Faith nodded dreamily, her cheek against his. She wondered if he realized the power he had over her. The power to bend her will to his in small things as well as big important ones. He had had that power the first night she ever saw him across the tables in Mrs. Puckett's dining room when he had made her break an engagement for the next night and make one with him instead.

He had that power now as he sat beside her, planning her life for her. He would always have it.

Synopsis

Mary Faith is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young businessman. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation. She meets his mother and enjoys the charming home life of the Nesbits. Mary Faith sees Kim in a store with another girl. She greets him casually. A few minutes later Mary Faith is surprised when Nesbit says he loves her.

Now Go On

"I'm going to marry you tomorrow," said Kim.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Santa Klaus, even with the last-minute rush which no matter how hard he tries to avoid, always seems to catch him two or three days before Christmas, found time to send the following telegram to the secretary of the Junior Komic Club:

"Secretary,
"Junior Komic Club,
"Sun-Telegraph,
"Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Be sure to tell all the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club that I'm going to be very busy in the morning and afternoon of December 24 packing the toys which I will deliver to the homes that night stop however I'm going to take a couple of hours off from this packing to make a special visit to all the theaters where the Junior Komic Clubs meet stop please tell all the members to be at the theater early as I won't have much time and I would like to see everyone and shake hands with each of them."

ARRIVE EARLY

So boys and girls there's all the information about the Saturday Christmas parties which will be held in all of the Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Clubs meet. Better take Santa's advice and be there early.

In addition to Santa's visit at the Ambridge Theater, Ambridge, Pa., Manager Ken Hoel has arranged a great stage show for the members this Saturday. All of the talent will be furnished by the Mann School of Dancing and the following pupils will take part.

Marie Simon will act as mistress of ceremonies introducing the following acts: Marcia Mann, Jean Dumeyer, Sara Barklay, Dorothy McCarthy, Mary Virginia Bunger, Dolores Antonelli, Jack and Paul Brooks in a sketch entitled "Holly Berries."

Virginia Becker, Ethel Seaser, Marion Barklay will offer a dance entitled the "Mann Mannikins."

Lois Wilson, Janet Stacel, Joan Stacel, Mary Pat Baird, Mary McDonald, Frances Conchos, Nancy Viti, Marjorie Loedding, Rosemary Mann, Joan Stenger, Dolores Garvin, Betty Ann Sheets, Patty Jean Carey, Lois Antonelli and Patsy Whitmore have been appointed "Santa's Babies" and the mischief that these youngsters get into while Santa's back is turned will bring many a laugh from the members.

Jane Smith and Victor Hoffman will offer an adagio dance and Marcia Mann will do a fast toe tap. Mary Pass will do an acrobatic dance on a flight of stairs, while Marie Simon, Dorothy Mann, Jane Smith, Helen Skiba, Frances Gentis and Ethel Seaser will offer a dance, entitled "Christmas Belles."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

The show will close with Marcia and Dorothy Mann singing "Sweet Jenny Lee."

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Rowland: Evelyn Gage.

Belmar: Raymond Cuniff, William Goldstrohm, Florence O'Leary, Andrew Jeannett, Joan Dirk, Theodore Jeannett.

Isn't It So?

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

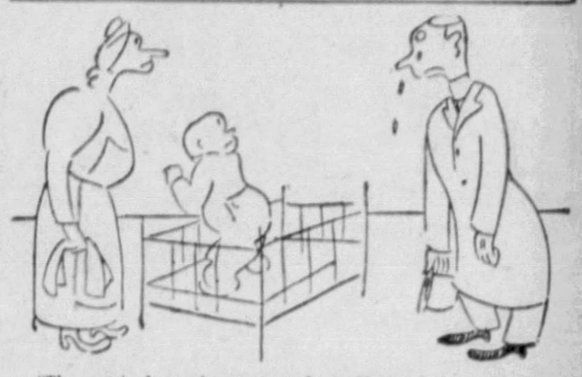
Let's Not Be Ashamed to Be Sentimental.



"The most pleasant memory of pre-Volstead days—the spectacle that made brewers proud—was the fine old brewery horse. He can never return. He belongs to the past."—Col. Jacob Ruppert.

He was just an average father in a hurry
As he passed the nursery door and called, "Goodbye!"
He was late to work and in a nervous flurry,
Yet he stopped and there were hot tears in his eye,
He retraced his steps and bolted in the nursery,
Where he stood before the infant's tiny bed,
Then he blew his nose and turning to the nurse he Spoke with deep emotion as he said:

REFRAIN (slowly and tenderly)

This child of mine will doubtless grow to manhood—
He'll have wealth and social status, without doubt—
He'll acquire all the knowledge
They dispense at Harvard College
And there's little he will have to do without.
But the tragedy for him that is predestined,
The fate that chokes me now with such remorse
Is that he will never know
What a fine and gorgeous show
Was presented by a full-blown brewery horse.

Poland Also Defaults

It Would Be Interesting to Know If She Will Repay the Loans Obtained from France

France having defaulted on her debt to the United States, her satellite, Poland, follows the French example.

The question naturally arises:

Does Poland find difficulty also in meeting her debts to France?

These Polish-French debts cannot be described as economic, as distinct from political, debts.

It is as plain as the revised map of Europe that the French loans to Poland have been WAR LOANS.

France has been supporting Poland, financially, only to preserve the French military hold on Europe.

French loans to Poland are as much war loans as were any of the inter-allied borrowings during the World War.

In fact, the French financial support of Poland today constitutes one of the great menaces to European peace.

French funds were supplied for the organization of a Polish army.

French funds purchased Poland's war materials.

Without French support, Poland would hardly dare be as militant as she is.

A sword-rattling Poland is conducive to German uneasiness, which is an objective of France.

A sword-rattling French-supported Poland is a constant warning to the Russian bear.

French loans to Poland are war loans, pure and simple.

Will Poland default on these loans?

Or will France insist that the Polish honor is at stake?

Home for Christmas!

What a Fine Thing It Would Be If the Wanderers Could Spend the Holiday With Their Families!

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's recent suggestion that wanderers either write home or go home for Christmas has won a cordial response.

The Governors of a score of states have commended the idea. The executives of Texas and Idaho issued proclamations asking their people to help put the suggestion into effect. An organization is being formed in 92 counties of Indiana to promote the plan.

What is being done in Allegheny County?

Not a few of those 200,000 American youths who are now roaming the country in search of food, shelter and a job must be sojourning temporarily in Pittsburgh and the vicinity. What a splendid thing it would be if some means could be devised to get them home for Christmas!

Gov. Dan W. Turner, of Iowa, says, in a letter commending Pinchot's suggestion: "There is no question that citizens who are at loose ends, hitch-hiking and bumming around over the country, are apt to be led into criminal activities."

According to this view, the protection of society demands that the wanderers be returned to their homes.

But there are other reasons just as good for working to this end, and it is to be hoped the social agencies of Allegheny County will do what they can to push Gov. Pinchot's plan. At the very least the wanderers should write a Christmas letter to their families.

Inefficiency or What?

Dog Owners Are Urged to Get 1933 Licenses Promptly, But the County Treasurer is Not Ready

Under date of December 15 the Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg sent the Sun-Telegraph the following notice for publication:

"Dog licenses and tags for 1933, totaling more than 500,000, are now in the hands of county treasurers throughout the Commonwealth and can be secured by dog owners, according to the Bureau of Animal Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"The Dog Law requires that 1933 tags be on all dogs by January 15. No extra time is allowed. After that date it is just as much a violation of the law to harbor a dog without a 1933 license as it would be to operate an automobile without a new license on or after January 1, the bureau explains.

"The bureau does not wish to prosecute dog owners. If owners will obtain licenses for dogs promptly, the bureau will not be forced to prosecute for non-observance of the law."

Try and get one in Allegheny County. Yes, it will be admitted at the County Treasurer's office, the licenses and tags have been received; but the Treasurer is not ready to issue them yet, and will not be ready for a couple of weeks. Come around again after the first of the year.

A small thing, perhaps, but characteristic of the way in which many municipal and governmental services are rendered in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. Witness the nine months of delay in issuing the "non-fixable" traffic violation tags as another example of the same thing.

Is it inefficiency, or indifference, or laziness, or what?

They Are Not Overpaid

Teachers' Salaries May Have to Come Down, But They Should Be Restored As Soon As Possible

The Board of Public Education is being strongly urged by various bodies of taxpayers to reconsider its 1933 budget and reduce the tax rate.

The Legislature will be asked, when it convenes next month, to repeal or amend the Edmonds Act, which fixes the salaries of public school teachers. It is proposed to cut the teachers' pay.

It may be necessary because of the taxpayers' difficulties to reduce the teachers' pay, but it should be stipulated that the reduction is merely temporary, and that the old salaries will be restored as soon as possible.

Pennsylvania school teachers are not overpaid. Our average is below that of adjoining states. In 1930 the average salary paid a Pennsylvania teacher was $1,620 a year, while New York was paying $2,500 and New Jersey $2,100.

College graduates will not be attracted to the teaching profession if the average pay is reduced too much, and the education of Pennsylvania children will suffer in consequence.

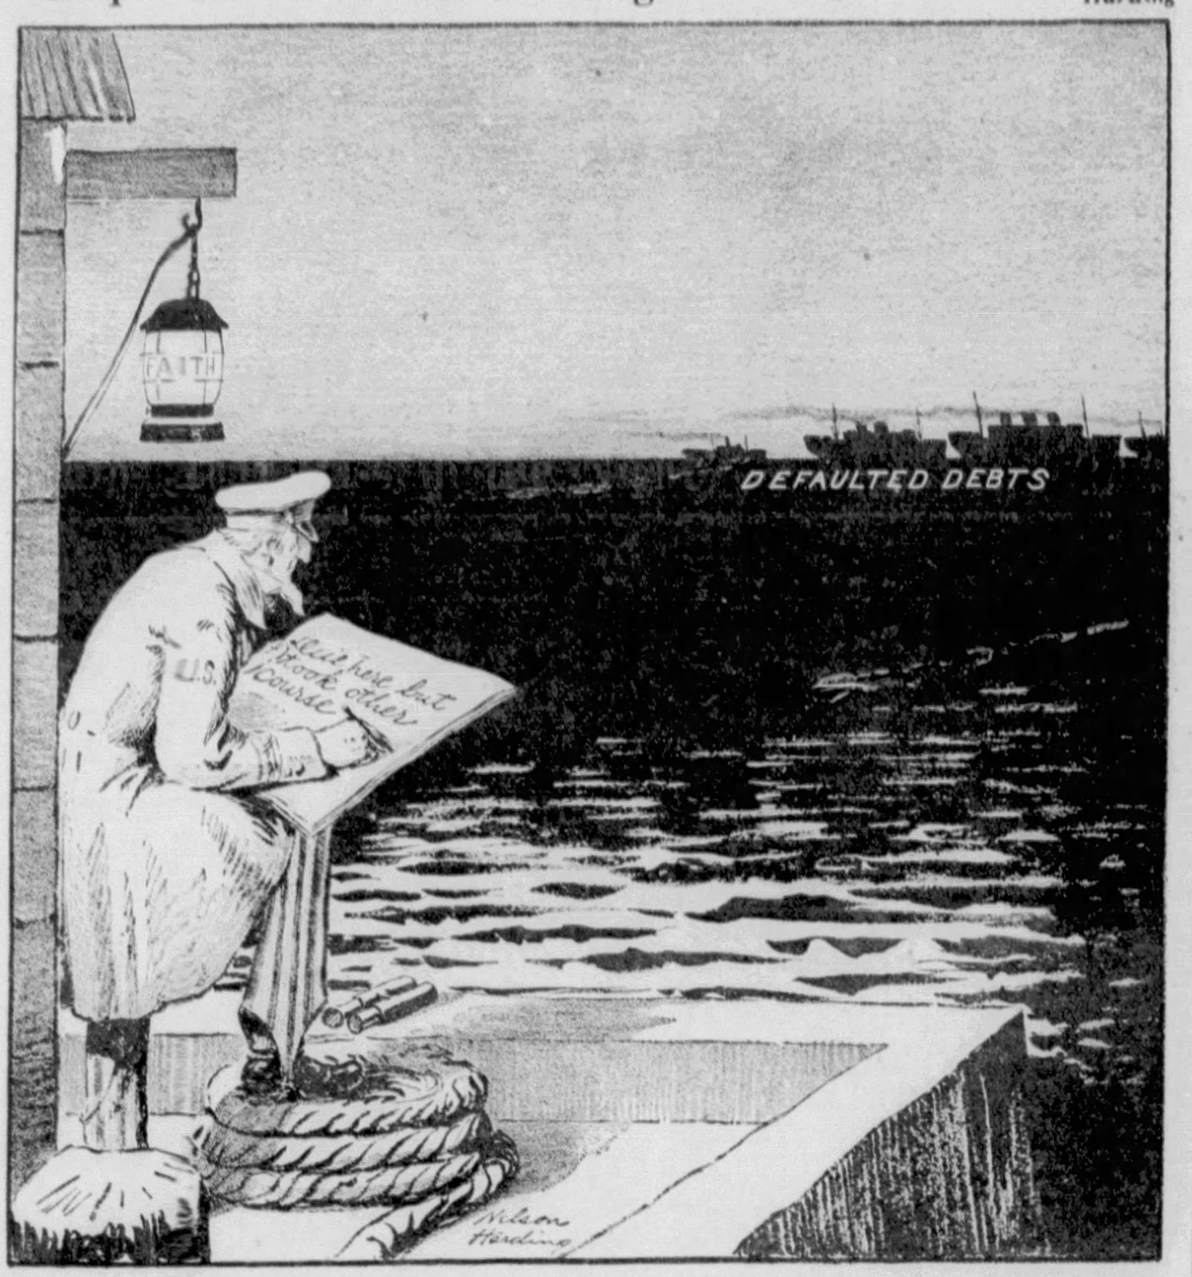
'Ships That Pass in the Night' -:- By Nelson Harding



Upon the dark horizon's rim
The shapes of vessels, faint and dim,
Pass by the harbor in the night
And vanish from the watcher's sight.

The words of his report are few
And form a sentence sad but true
While overhead the lantern gleams
Upon the lines that end his dreams.

Marry-Go-Round

My Ideal Man

"What man has been the greatest inspiration in your life?" asks a woman correspondent—right out of a clear sky!

* * *

King Solomon! I can answer, just like that. There was a man, whom almost any woman feels she must have admired—and might have loved! As a poet, a statesman, a philosopher, a host and a husband, his fame stands unrivaled!

* * *

Ah, if one could find a man of such tact, such brilliancy, such charm, such finesse, such aplomb today, he might make even ONE WIFE happy! Which, as every man knows, is a far more difficult feat than making a thousand happy.

According to all records, Solomon was a "snappy dresser" and a man you could be proud of when you took him out evenings.

* * *

His heart may have been "syndicated," and as his wife, a woman may have been only "one of a crowd," but to everything he said or did, Solomon gave the "personal significance" so dear to the sentimental heart of a woman.

* * *

Solomon, like all men, enjoyed giving "advice"—but he gave it all to his son. When he wanted to influence a woman, he sang a song of praise, told her how wonderful she was, and painted her as the Ideal Wife. And, naturally, after that, no wife could disappoint him.

* * *

Solomon was no Don Juan, but a man of honor. He could marry a woman or let her alone. And that's more than you can say for most men.

Solomon never balked at marriage. He didn't have to be anesthetized or hypnotized into a proposal. It didn't take six ushers and the best man to get him together and drag him to the altar. He went into marriage with his eyes wide open—and then forever kept them SHUT, which is the true secret of happiness.

* * *

Solomon talked like a poet. You didn't have to compose his tender nothings and make him repeat them after you. You didn't have to beg him to tell you WHY he loved you. You didn't have to drug him and then extract a compliment from him. He was no Sphinx around the house!

* * *

And his "Song of Songs" would have touched the heart of any woman—but, thank heaven, it must be chanted, and cannot be crooned!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Bowery pawn shops, more than ever, are symbolic of their sign of the proud Medici—three gold balls—this winter. For a fallen aristocracy is crossing their thresholds. Havens of down town money lenders offer obscure hide aways for those from uptown who need quick loans.

It's no exaggeration that many who once were able to drop into banks for four-figured sums, without question, now must pledge treasures to fill the family larder. Fifth and Park avenues have their quota of those who borrow in the Bowery area. A matron from Tuxedo Park recently pawned her engagement ring.

As a rule, pawnshop trivia is junk, but it is doubtful if ever before they have received such magnificent offerings. One sees real silver tea sets, nine-branched candlesticks and priceless heirlooms of doubtless antiquity.

Windows are Pandora boxes, overflowing with luxurious links to former happiness! In one shadowy cavern, near Broome street, there was a gentleman's evening dress set—something not out of place in a Cartier window. In another, the exquisite blending of Rookwood pottery.

In still another window, cluttered with tawdry clocks (decorated with fractious bronze horses) and silly shaped silver-plated vases, there stood out, like a lily in the bog, a frosted glass fruit dish embellished with the unmistakable statuary loveliness of Lalique.

To her affianced, a short story writer, she sent a generous flagon of the perfume she loved and a note: "I am sending this in lieu of your favorite picture. A photograph is a dead thing but a scent is alive. Think of me always as vitally active and merely in what I hope is an advanced state of consciousness."

Depressing rumors are insistent, three romantic old hotels of the town will close shortly. Twenty years is long life for a metropolitan inn, but many, due to the boom, were able to remain open profitably until now.

Alexander Woollcott's farewell party, before taking off for Russia, was a mock mannequin parade in his manor, dubbed "Wit's End." All the Parisian flubdubbery was in profusion—the miniature stage for display, tea cart refreshments, pivoting ladies panoplied in finery, and pads and pencils for guests to check the exhibits. Among gowns called off as they appeared were: "Mme. Ancienne," "Pour le Brothel," and others.

Two years ago, Vash Young, who never had written a line for print, showed me a manuscript I thought unusually meritorious. Several editors whom I asked to read it thought otherwise. LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Here's another of those letters at which I advise you not to laugh. Something has happened to the world. Here is one of the millions of girls who is paying for it. What is she going to do about it? What are we going to do about her?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

You answer many curious questions, some of them most puzzling. But never yet have I read an answer to my problem, yet it is one of the commonest.

I'm 33, in splendid health. It's tiresome to "press agent" myself, but I suppose necessary. So here goes. I am told, not hard to look at. Brown-haired, blue eyes, slight. Know how to dress—and make most of them. Amiable. Good mixer.

However, it is my professional, not my personal status which is making the trouble. I'm a private secretary. I started work at 19 and have now advanced to a very good position.

Let me hasten to add that I am not "working for fun," nor am I taking a job from anyone. I am forced to support myself and have literally created my own position. In short, I occupy exactly the same position in the working world which an intelligent, hard-working young man might occupy. But here's the difference.

If a young man occupied my position he could proceed to round out the personal side of his existence, as well as the professional. He could fall in love with some nice girl, marry her, start a home and family and proceed to enjoy a normal life. And everyone would expect him to do just this.

But consider my condition, or the condition of thousands of girls like me. We, too, want a home; more, perhaps, than the man. We would love a fine husband and adore our babies. We are as willing to be wives as our mothers were, and much better fitted to be intelligent and understanding companions to men. But what can we do about it?

In the first place, what are our chances for attracting any man? A young man, in my position, would have countless opportunities to court nice girls. Practically every girl he met would welcome him as a possible husband. But how many men would welcome me as a possible wife? Mighty few!

Most of the men who come into my office regard me as they would the office furniture. If I were not a working woman, but just a pretty girl client waiting in the office, they would be instantly alert to my feminine possibilities.

On the other hand, suppose I fall in love with some nice man, which I am only too willing to do. Nine chances out of 10, nowadays, the man hasn't as good a position as I. That would make no difference were situations reversed—were he a woman and I a man. My beloved's financial inferiority would then be taken for granted, and my proposal be welcomed. But, since I am a woman, that very fact puts me beyond the pale. No self-respecting fellow would permit himself to return my affections.

AND WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF I WAVED ALL THAT ASIDE AND PROPOSED MARRIAGE, SAYING THAT MONEY MADE NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN US?

The man himself, and every person who heard it, would regard me as crazy. That's what would happen!

Yet why should that be? Why haven't I as much right to propose marriage as a man? The man's right to do the proposing wasn't a natural right. It was based on his financial superiority. But he isn't financially superior any more. So then, what?

ALICE J. HOWELL.

I pass, Alice. YOU tell her, Stranger. Should a nice girl propose? And what's she to do if she doesn't?

Europe Misinterprets America

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Foreign Legion of anti-American propagandists in America are jubilant openly because France and two of her allies have refused to make the payment on her debt. Most of us will much prefer the attitude of Herriot, the former French Premier, who positively refuses to re-enter the government without the assurance from Parliament that the signature of France will be honored.

While the Foreign Legion of America is rejoicing over the refusal of France to pay, the people of England properly are proud of the manly manner in which they have met their obligation.

The Foreign Legion tells us that the amount we lose and have to raise by the taxation of our people is very small; but fails to mention the reverse. If an insignificant thing for us to make up by taxation for the loss from five nations, it would seem to the vulgar that the cost of payment for each of the five nations might be even less appalling.

Meanwhile, France is becoming a bit dubious about the wisdom of her action. Many Frenchmen believe with Herriot that not only policy but honor was involved, and that France will lose infinitely more than she saves.

The one man who comes out of the flurry with flying colors is Herriot, whose plea for the meeting of the obligation must have been distasteful to the American Foreign Legion.

It unquestionably was distasteful to Mr. Hoover and the international bankers who, according to Herriot, gave an impression that has not been borne out by events.

* * *

No Need for Hectic Haste

In view of the mess that has been made of the whole debt situation, it is just as well to wait now until Mr. Roosevelt assumes the responsibilities of office before doing anything more. Mr. Hoover still is bent on another debt commission, apparently to reconsider the debts of France and the other defaulters, along with those of England.

That certainly will not meet with popular approval. Since Congress has taken its stand on the creation of another commission and Mr. Roosevelt has taken a position in favor of another means of negotiation, it is said that the President may, on his own responsibility, name a bi-partisan commission composed of some members of Congress, including Democrats, without the consent of Congress.

In view of the mess that has been made by impressions given the debtors by the administration and bankers, who do not in any sense authoritatively speak for the nation, it is not likely that any Democrat will serve. By doing so he would demonstrate an indifference to Mr. Roosevelt, who must not be embarrassed by a policy not in accord with his own plan.

Nor is it likely that he who so soon is to assume the responsibility of the presidency will consent to act at this juncture as a mere "yes, yes" man of the present administration.

Until the defaulting nations pay what they owe, there is no occasion for negotiations with them through any commission; and since the next payment does not fall due from England until after Mr. Roosevelt takes office, there is no need for hectic haste.

America Against the Transfer

In his address in the Commons, Winston Churchill said one good thing—that it is poor policy for England to make common cause with France or any other country against the United States. By making her payment in the old-fashioned, time-honored English way, that "understanding" is a thing of the past.

But he said another thing which is not so good. He announced that the Middle West here is against transferring the debts of the debtor nations to the American taxpayers, but that the East, "which is better informed," is in favor of it.

This illustrates anew the traditional blundering of foreign publicists and statesmen in their search for American sentiment. We have commented upon it before. When they visit New York City, for example, they make no contacts with the average man. They are taken in tow by a small group who pride themselves on their internationalism, and are apt to speak to the sojourner apologetically of the mass of our people. And they get an entirely erroneous impression of what even New York is thinking. Put to a vote in New York City the proposition to transfer the debts and it would be defeated by an overwhelming majority. It is not the Middle West that is against the transfer; it is America.

* * *

When Tom Moore Visited America

But our foreign visitors of distinction never learn. Many years ago, when scarcely more than a boy, Tom Moore, the Irish bard, visited this country and wrote lampoons, poems, satires against America and particularly against Thomas Jefferson, who was President. Years later, when his poems were collected in one volume, he wrote an apologetic introduction, explaining his offensive comments on this country. First, he said, he was young. Then added the real explanation—

"My mind was left open too much to the influence of the feelings and prejudices of those I chiefly consorted with; and certainly in no quarter was I so sure to find concerted hostility, both to the men and the principles then dominant as in the ranks of the angry Federalist Opposition."

And yet that policy of "consorting" with just one group and one political school has continued through the years. I recently read the biographies of John Morley, John Bryce and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, and noticing the frequency with which correspondence with leaders, and very partisan leaders, of one school of political thought occurred, I am curious enough to search for some evidence of friendship with leaders of the other school.

I found none.

It was scarcely sensible to attempt an interpretation of America on the opinions of one group.

Perhaps it is because of this disposition thus to interpret America that Europe so frequently has been shocked to get reactions from America they had been given no reason to expect. So with the East and the debts.

* * *

Government Must Be American

We are offering no apology for the act of France in defaulting; and yet it is impossible to read the courageous and frank speech of Herriot, who went down to defeat rather than be a party to the default, without the conviction that some one, speaking for the American government, and not the American people, had created a false impression of sentiment here which has led the French into a serious blunder. If that be true France is not nearly so much to blame for the Franco-American mess as some one or some group in this country. And if the French feel they thus have been deceived it is not difficult to comprehend their indignation.

What we must have henceforth is a robust American government. That does not mean a flamboyant, sword-rattling nationalism at all. It does not mean adherence to a stupid idea that we economically are independent of the rest of the world; nor does it mean that we should refuse co-operation with other nations when it does not mean the sacrificing of vital American interests. All it means is that our government must be robustly American, just as the British government is stoutly British, and the French government passionately French.
